

Angels' Place receives grants

Angels' Place has received a grant of $100,000 from the McGregor Fund Board of Trustees.

The grant, to be paid over two years, will provide start-up support of the Holy Family Home, a Christian transitional home for persons with developmental disabilities who wish to prepare to live independently in the community.

The McGregor Fund, established in 1925 "to relieve the misfortunes and promote the well-being of mankind," has granted over $100 million since its founding.

In addition, a substantial grant of $160,000 (made on a challenge basis) was awarded to Angels' Place by the Trustees of The Kresge Foundation of Troy. It marked the successful conclusion of a $1.8 million Capital Campaign.

The Angel's Place mission is to provide Christian homes and supportive care to men and women with developmental disabilities.

Academy art exhibited

Selected: Kensington Academy seventh grader Nichole Stanton's portrait (at left) was chosen to appear in the ninth annual Our Town Student Art Exhibit at the Birmingham Community House. Stanton is from Northville. Other academy students whose artwork was selected for exhibition at the show, which provides a venue for Michigan artists to exhibit their work, are: Nicholas Robinson of Detroit; Scott Stoddard of Bloomfield Village; Alexander Hess, Amanda Ustiek, Erin Bowen, Alyssa Pinkos, Amanda Haddad and Lilliana Richter, all of Bloomfield Hills; Chera Burwell and Jourdan Sims of Southfield; Corey Eridon and Jackie Horst of Rochester Hills; Frances Murphy of Farmington Hills; Keith Strombotne of Northville Township; and Jeff Szepzynski of Beverly Hills. Kensington Academy, in Beverly Hills, is an independent, coed Catholic day school.

Class helps parents prepare for breastfeeding

The best time to learn how to care for a newborn is before the birth.

To help expectant mothers and fathers prepare for one important aspect of care, William Beaumont Hospital offers monthly prenatal breastfeeding classes.

"Preparing for Breastfeeding" will meet 7-10 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3, at the Beaumont Medical Building, Conference Rooms A and B, 6900 Orchard Lake Rd., West Bloomfield and 7-10 p.m.

Tuesday, Nov. 10, at Beaumont Rehabilitation and Health Center, Classrooms C and D, 746 Purdy St., Birmingham.

Expectant mothers are encouraged to take the class between their 34th and 38th week of pregnancy. Fathers-to-be are also welcome to attend. The class fee is $20 for each individual or couple.

To register, or for more information, call Beaumont's Physician Referral & Information Service toll-free at 1-800-633-7377.
