secret," she said. "We were stationed in southeast England and were a mobile unit."

Feeling proud

When the war ended, her commanding officer selected her to march in the victory parade in London. She remembers marching before Winston Churchill, King George and Lord Mountbatten.

She and John met on military leave. In 1950, they emigrated to the U.S. and have lived in Farmington Hills for 30 years now.

John's friend, Bob Andersen, served in the Signal Corps airway command from 1944-46. Both men served in India and China and it was that connection that led to their friendship today.

"We met at the Masonic Lodge 35 years ago and connected because of our war experience," Andersen said. "We hunt and fish together."

After a hot lunch and the military roll call, partygoers enjoyed dancing for the remainder of the afternoon.
