Give thanks; it's not a social obligation

Thanksgiving is not just a day, more significantly, it is a state of mind. This may sound both obvious and redundant, but there is no Thanksgiving without thanksgiving to many people try te cepture Thanksgiving in their hearts and it ends up a dismal failure.

and it ends up a dismal failure.

I have a feeling that many people celebrate Thanksgiving out of a sense of obligation; kind of like everybody else is doing it, so they think they should too. Thanksgiving then becomes one of those social obligations where you cat too much with too many people whom you may not even with 1 think you can see that there is really not much in the way of thanksgiving about that.

True thanksgiving is not the social objects of the social objects of the social objects.

True thanksgiving is not as much an obligation as it is a joy. Real thanksgiving is an outpouring of gratitude that comes rushing out of you because your heart is filled with so much jubilation that you can't contain it.

We don't see much in the way of real thanksgiving no Thanksgiving nowadays. Instead we see a great deal of striving to impress others, and a great deal of striving to impress others, and a great deal of depression because of that striving. We see people who have full houses that are filled with all sorts of stuff and stuffing, who still feel empty and unsatisfied. This is just another reminder that thanksgiving is, first and foremost, a state of mind, then we have not put ourselves in the right frame of mind, the greatest amount of goodies will not make us grateful. In fact, the more sated we are, the more ungrateful we are likely to be.

Where less is more

I would guess that people who have less tend to be more grate-ful than those who have more. This is true in every area of life. Those with less freedom, for instance, are more likely to be grateful for the freedom that they have. I am sure that this is one of the reasons that the churches in Eastern Europe tend to be packed these days. After experiencing such extreme restriction on the freedom of religion, the people of Eastern Live of the freedom to the free

Perhaps a required part of very school curriculum should every school curriculum should involve spending a year in an impoverished part of the world, where personal freedoms are severely restricted. Such an experience might teach us all the meaning of true thanksgiving.

meaning of true thanksgiving.

In lieu of such an experience, we are simply going to have to pray our way into a spirit of thanksgiving, because all real thanksgiving, because all real thanksgiving begins with prayer. Prayer is the window to thanksgiving, and it is the only way I know to make this Thanksgiving, and rot just burdensome drudgery. So here's to a thankful Thanksgiving, one that is filled with propound appreciation, deep gratitude and exuberant joy.

BELIEFS & Values

A simple coat drive goes beyond boundaries

Two years ago, Temple Beth El teamed with Ranya Kelly, the Shoe Lady of Denver, to deliver coats, shoes, baby equipment, food and household items to over 10,000 individuals served by 45 spencies, shelters and soup kitchens in the tricounty area. They repeated their efforts in 1997. Kelly again brought a truckload of merchandise from Denver, the congregants collected items locally; and in two days in December, they reached out one more to those in need in the community.

This year's Coat Drive promises to be an even greater outreach. Temple Beth El will be joined by co-sponsors Metro Parent Magazine, Christ Church Cranbrook, The Church of Today, Congregational Church of Birmingham, First Baptist Church of Birmingham, St. Owen Catholic Church, St. Regis Catholic Church and St. Hugo of the Hills to provide coats and more to thousands in Mayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and beyond.

Honorary chairs of this year's effort are Rabbi Daniel Syme of Temple Beth El, Alyssa Martina, publisher of Metro Parent Magazine and community leader Frank Stella. They will again be joined by Ranya Kelly who carned the title 'the Shoe Lady of Denver more than a dozen years ago when she turned the simple act of searching for a shee box to package a Christmas gift into a charitable effort that reaches thousands in Denver, the United States and throughout the world. Those wishing to contribute to the 1998 Coat Drive may bring gently-used men's, women's and children's coats, new hats and mittens us well as new car seats and high chairs to Temple Beth El now through Dec. 11. For more information on the drive or donations, please call Lois Gerenraich or Bobbi Charnas, (248) 865-6616.
