'Shakespeare in Love' a treat for the heart

BY VICTORIA DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

Young Will Shakespeare is suffering from a rather stubborn case of writer's block. Then, one evening, he spies a beautiful stranger across a crowded room and falls hopelessly, helplessly, maddeningly in love at first sight. This passion inspires him to sit right down and write one of the most enduring love stories of all time, "Romeo and Juliet."

This, in a nutshell, is the fanciful plot of director John Madden's new film, "Shakespeare in Love." Who knows if a smidgen of it is true? Who cares if the idea sounds slightly silly on paper? In and of itself, this movie, scripted by Marc Norman and Tom Stoppard, is utterly captivating. It's lively. It's colorful. It's witty. It's moving. And, though it always seems authentically Elizabethan, it never loses touch with its 1990s audience.

What else could we ask as filmgoers? How about a cast that simply dazzles?

By all means, begin with Joseph Fiennes, who plays the young, smitten Bard of Avon with a kind of feverish intensity that seems just right, though you might expect it to grow tedious or to edge over-the-top. His dashing but slightly-grubby Shakespeare even seems to be just a bit of a ding-a-ling now and then, but since most of us turn a little goofy in the heat of passion, anyway, this only makes him appear more human.

As Lady Viola, the object of ardent affection, Gwyneth Paltrow supplies the requisite dreamy quality and ethereal beauty, as only she can. When she takes the stage as Romeo (in this story-within-a-story, Lady Viola disguises herself as a boy in order to act on the all-male Elizabethan stage), it's a bit of stretch to believe she'd fool anybody for long, however.

A superb supporting cast adds just the right touches at just the right times. Dame Judi Dench is a slightly wigged-out Elizabeth I. Colin Firth, plays Lady Viola's cooly-calculating suitor, Lord Wessex. Ben Affleck, looking luscious as a gypsy fiddler, appears as the popular Elizabethan thespian, Ned Alroy, and the sad-eyed Geoffrey Rush makes his mark as the mad-eyed and grimy theater owner, Philip Henslowe. True to the era, just about every other character in this movie looks unwashed.

It's almost impossible to emphasize how important the settings, costumes, lighting, makeup, and all other peripherals are in this movie. So central are they that one seriously hesitates even to refer to them as "peripherals."

Production designer Martin Childs, costume designer Lisa Westcott obviously believe that God is in the details. Some of the shots are so beautiful that they look as if they have been designed by Caravaggio. And we are provided with a look at everything from the jewel-encrusted clothing to the sop in the teeming streets to the theaters, the pubs, the churches, brothels, markets, and country houses. You'll even get a peek at the toothbrushes of the day. In every direction, "Shakespeare in Love" is a feast for the eyes, and a treat for the heart. Please enjoy.
