the examples of what he talked about," said Swan. "His whole idea is how the Italian opera came to America – Reasini, Puccini and Verdi. The Vordi Opera Theatre does a lot to educate. The concept is to continue the Verdi tradition. Sometimes the MET does Verdi's Riggletto, but they're doing more contemporary music. We're trying to keep the Italian tradition alive. Italians are very passionate people. They just love life and singing. All vocal music comes from Italy, the church in Rome, around the 15th-16th century. Zaretti, in addition to talking about the history of opera, will also display his collection of rare opera posters.

"It's a fractinating story," said Zaretti, a Canton resident. During the gold rush days, opera houses were above bars and would burn down all the time because they didn't have electricity. The program will foll low the history with arias from Puccinis Girl of the Golden West' and La Boheme. Carna came in the era of the phonograph around 1904. There's a lot of great stars in opera and a lot of stories.

Zaretti hopes in the near future that the Verdi Opera Theatre of Michigan will be able to take productions such as "Opera Encored" to the new performing arts center in Cauton.

We'd like to expand beyond just plane accompaniment to maybe even tage operas, and Zaretti. "We're finding the community is realizing the community is realizing the orable of the community is the arts program. It looks like Zaretti runy get his wish. Joan Noricks, a board member of Partnership for the Arts, which is overseeing the project, said decisions about the move performing arts center will be made sometime in March.

"It's very exciting," and Noricks. In the next couple of weeks we'll be receiving the report from the consultant (AMS Fianning & Research in Connection) and the Partnership for the Arts will come determination of what's next - a fund-raising plan and perhaps a ground-breaking in apring 2001."

The music department chairman is excited about the eclectic program but states matter of-factly that faculty frequently perform throughout metro Detroit. That's one of the ben-ofits students receive when they take music courses at the university. "We're performers anyway," said Popoff-Parks, a Plymouth resident. "It gives the student a chance to hear us. It's important for them to hear what we can do. And it's important for the community. We're offering them the opportunity to enjoy music. We will also talk about the music we're going to play, so we're an educator as well as an entertainer."

Popoff-Parks will be joined by three faculty members for the pro-gram on Sunday, Feb. 27, in Kresge Hall.

Proceeds from the $6 admission will support the music scholarship fund. "The recital is a nice variety of genres, styles, and colors with different instruments – fluto, piano and voice," said Popoff-Parks. "We look to hiro adjunct professors who are strong performers. All of our staff are devoted teachers who have the lovo of music in their hearts that drives them everyday." Popoff-Parks is proud of the university that offers a major in music, with concentrations in performance, education, management and church music.

Vibrant sculptures: Michael Ragins stands by "Pennsyl-vania Moon Set."

Artist creates works of beauty in spite of 'fate'

By Linda Ann Chomen Staff Writer Ichomin@oc.homecomm.

"Fato" is an appropriate title for the first work of Michael Ragins" newest series, which combines sculpture and painting. If it hand't been for the devoatating illness Neurofibromatosis, Ragins may never have begun to create works consisting primarily of yarn and sticks. The nerve disorder-caused fibrous tumors to graw on his spine and made it difficult for him to use his arms and legs.

After surgery to remove the fibromas, Ragins began the long road back to recovery in reshab at the University of Michigan Med Medical Center. Instead of working in Medical Center. Background

Background
Based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, 'Godspell,' an awardwinning musical by John-Michael Telbelak with music and lyrice by Stephen Schwartz, opened off-Broadway on May 17, 1971. It ran for 2,127 performances off-Broadway, and 527 on Broadway.
Rembiaz set the play in the year 2000 instead of the 1970s so audiences could identify with it better.

"It read well then, and it was very controversial," ahe said. The characters were Gown-like costumes. Jesus had a clown nose, and wore a Superman shirt.

man shirt.

In the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production, Jesus still wears a Superman shirt, but he's also wear-a Superman annt, but he's also wearing carpenter jeans because, Rembias explains, Jesus was a carpenter.

To add authenticity to the show,
Rembias went to the Bible and read the Gospel according to St. Matthew.
"The show made a lot more sense

Three weeks to go and counting. Dinnne Abel is keeping track of the days until — "Van Gogh: Face to Face" — the exhibit of the year opens at the Detroit Inatitute of Arts. Abel, associate director of development, volunteer services and special events, is responsible for recruiting volunteers to staff the 11 galleries that will showcase 70 paintings and drawings on loan from private collections and museums around the world.

"I don't think anyone ever imagined the magnitude of this exhibit, said Abel. "We're seeking to fill 2,800 volunteer positions during the 13-week run. We've already sold 80,000 tickets, and have people calling from Indiana to Chicago and Cleveland. Excited is an understatement. Overwhelmed is closer to it. We've never had an exhibit of this magnitude."

tude."

The 18 shifts a week we'll have for van Gogh is above and beyond everything we do, added volunteer coordinator Gloria Parker. "We're excited but it's a little scary, also."

More than 300,000 visitors walked through the "Splendors of Ancient Egopt" exhibit in a span of six months in 1997. The museum expects as many people to visit the van Gogh
