Shamrocks disqualified from tourney

Redford Catholic Central's wrestling team was dropped from the Division I team dual wrestling tournament Wednesday — not because the Shamrocks lost on the mat but by using two ineligible athletes.

"The rules were pretty black and white on this," CC athletic director Bob Santello said. "There wasn't a lot of gray area. It wasn't (the wrestler's) fault."

The ineligibility came from the wrestlers exceeding the limit of 16 regular-season weigh-ins, something that wasn't discovered until after CC competed in the individual district Saturday at Troy High School. CC also forfeited its previous wins in the team tournament.

It also gave Novi a bye into the regional final, where the Wildcats defeated Plymouth Salem to advance to state quarterfinals March 3 in Battle Creek.

"We were informed by the manager of the individual district at Troy the season history, which indicates wins, losses and weigh-ins for each wrestler, showed the two student-athletes had weighed in 17 times during the regular season," said John Johnson of the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

"Once we were able to share this information with CC, it withdrew from the tourney."

While the team was declared ineligible for Wednesday's regional meet, it does not affect the status of the other wrestlers who qualified for Saturday's individual regional.

"We called the MHSAA, explained our situation and tried to determine our next move," Santello said. "But it was a violation and the two individuals were disqualified."

In 1990, CC was reprimanded by the MHSAA for rules violations under current coach Mike Rodriguez, who did not return phone calls Wednesday from the Observer.
