

Bowling viewers never know who they'll see on TV

TEH-PIN ALLEY
AL HARRISON

I watch TV when pro bowling is on, but lately it is hard to keep up with the ladies tour since they have varied the days and times. Better to check your TV guide for ESPN2.

Last Monday night there was the Ladies' tour from San Diego at 9 p.m. and there was more than just the bowling, as one of the front row spectators was none other than Joe Norris, one of the all-time greats from Detroit.

Norris was recently honored as one of the top 20 bowlers of the 20th century.

Now at the age of 92, Norris still looks great and we all hope to see him here in August, as he has always flown in from San Diego to bowl in the annual John P. Gavis Memorial Tournament.

It was Kim Adler rolling to victory in the San Diego Open, winning the final match over Michelle Feldman.

A strong contingent from our area on the tour includes Alea Sill, Marianne DiRupo, Cheryl Daniels and Lisa Bishop.

Sill is the first and only lady bowler to top the $1-million mark on the tour.

Look for the current issue of Sports Illustrated magazine (May 15, 2000, page 39) for a clip on Jarvis Woshke, the senior wonder, who at age 86 has bowled two 300 games in one season (1999-2000).

He is the only person in the 105-year history of the American Bowling Congress to have performed such a feat in his or her 80s, the third oldest in the nation with a 300 game—ever.

Jarvis will be up for election to the Greater Detroit Hall of Fame later this summer.

He gets my vote, easily. Nice photo, SI.

The Bowling Writers Association of America have chosen Earl Anthony and Marion Ladewig as the top male and female bowlers of the past century.

Dick Weber and Don Carter finished second and third in the voting. Lisa Wagner and local favorite Sill were the second and third vote-getters on the women's side.

Anthony was a true master of the game and captured more titles than anyone else, 41 on the regular tour plus seven senior titles.

Ladewig of Grand Rapids was just a superior talent, often averaging more than the men in tournament competition.

Most other women bowlers just did not stand a chance against her, she was so much better than the rest.

The Western Wayne Youth Traveling Classic League held its annual banquet at the Wayne Community Center last Sunday and a lot of awards were given out based on performance.

Members receiving accolades included Jackie Haner, Brent Kossick, Bill Collins, Pat Barter, Steve Engobretson, Roy Hixson, Amber Henn, Scott Clemons, Kim Trumbull, David and Mike Jacobs, Steve Reitzel, Luke Watkins, Dan and Ken Paczas, Tim Moncrieff, Derek Paquin and Jon Robinson.

Some of the trophies were a carryover from the Y.A.B.A. Banquet, held a day earlier in Warren.

The W.W.Y.T.C. had a grand year, and many of the bowlers made much progress developing into fine players.

The league champion Colonial Lanes team included Niki Moore, Ryan Mortenson, Luke Watkins, Roy Hixson and Scotty Clemons.

Guys high series was by Luke Watkins with 814, while Jackie Haner was the winner for girls high game and series with 300/789.

Bill Collins and Brent Kossick shared boys high-game honors, each posting a 300 game. Collins and Philicia Anderson were tops in doubles with 1,304, while Ken Bazman and Natasha Martin took second with 1256.

High average for boys went to Steve Engobretson (207). Haner led the girls (195).

There are teams made up and ready to bowl against the Detroit area's two other top youth traveling leagues in the annual Team Challenge, Sunday, June 4 at Ypsi-Arbor Lanes. The Sunday Youth Classic League and the Wayne Youth Traveling League will also participate.

The mini-camp is scheduled for Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 12-13, at Wayne Bowl.

The mini-camp serves as a try-out venue for aspiring youth bowlers who would like to join the league, and also an instructional format for just about anyone at any age who would like some coaching help with their game.

The Livonia Parks & Recreation youth bowling program had its championships on May 3 at Merri Bowl with 260 youngsters competing in three age divisions — bantams (ages 6-8), preps (9-11) and juniors (12-up).

Teams represented four Livonia bowling centers — Cloverlanes, Woodland Lanes, Merri Bowl and Woodland Lanes.

Among the championship teams in each division:
Juniors — the Cloverlanes team of Daryl Rayen, Dave Furtak, Adam Woodward (183 average, 174-204), Joshua Truxa (187 average, 234-187) and Scott Jones (147 average, 203-165).

Bantam — the Merri Bowl team of Alex Manetti, Austin Marchew, Andrew Szecapaniak and Julie Kuebler.

Preps — the Woodland Lanes team of Dianna Brda, Justin Fultz, Joe Celano, Keith Chonta (average 76, 144-178) and John Karasinaki.
