have learned jumps and other intricate moves, the show includes all ranges of talent, Murphy said.

Performances will fill about two hours, set to music by artists from the 1940s through the present.

"It's a little bit of everything," LeBlanc said. "The group numbers have featured skaters. There'll be solos, and three of our precision teams will be performing their numbers. We get everybody involved."

"The majority of it is kids," Murphy added.

That includes the featured guest skater, 13-year-old Lisa Dannehill of Ann Arbor. However, her skating history makes it difficult to see her as a "kid."

An eighth-grade honor roll student at Tappan Middle School, Dannehill trains at the Ann Arbor Ice Cube with coaches Jackie and Joe Mero. Since 1998, she has won Eastern Great Lakes regional and ladies national championships and competed in the Junior Olympics.

She will skate twice before the finals in both the first and second halves of the show. Skating director Val LeBlanc believes the young star will inspire skaters of all levels, as well as dazzle the audience.

"She's landing 'triple,'" LeBlanc said. "We think that'll be a nice thing for our kids to Performances are set for 7:30 p.m. on Friday, May 19, and Saturday, May 20, and 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 21.

see."

For the first time this year, the audience will watch a slide show during the performance. In addition to the featured musical artists, LeBlanc has taken photos of the skaters.

"We do everything like a professional ice show," she said. "We have a fog machine, strobes, black lights, even bubbles."

While the audience will most likely be packed with relatives and friends, LeBlanc and Murphy agree an increased national interest in watching ice skating has led to an increase in registrations for classes. LeBlanc reported many adult classes have filled quickly. Parents and children often take lessons together.

The show's popularity generally leads to a sell out, but tickets are still available. Performances are set for 7:30 p.m. on Friday, May 19, and Saturday, May 20, and 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 21. Admission is $7 for adults, $6 for senior citizens and children ages 6 and older. Children ages 5 and under are admitted free of charge.

Tickets may be purchased at the Ice Arena, 35500 Eight Mile Road, or at the Special Services Recreation Offices, at the William B. Costick Center, 28500 11 Mile Road.
