Gone

Blaze: A 1989 Dodge Shadow owned by a Detroit resident was destroyed Monday morning, the result of a fire that apparently started in the passenger compartment. Farmington Hills firefighters responded to the fire in the area of Ridgewood Drive and 11 Mile Road around 10 a.m. Flames rendered the car a total loss; estimated damages were $1,500. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

Some residents, which told of the discontinuation, sounded as if they didn't even know the Monday-Friday afternoon shows were available. But, said Lowrance, the weekend matinees are going relatively strong. "We have a lot of loyal customers who come every week," he said.

Some of those customers arrived on Sunday to find the theater closed, due to the power failure.

"We had a lot of disappointed people and we wound up giving out a lot of free passes," Lowrance said. "But everybody was real nice about it."

Both Richards and Lowrance said weekend rain resulted in a malfunctioning sump pump.

Richards said the amount of the damage was estimated at $2,000 to $2,500. Funds for those repairs will be made available through a city contingency budget for such emergencies.

The theater was back up and running by Tuesday morning, Lowrance said.

The city purchased the landmark theater in mid-1999 from longtime owner Greg Hohler, to ensure it remain a family movie house. It is also being used for other community events, including recent teacher training sessions for Farmington Public Schools and the Miss Farmington/Oakland County Pageant.
