Who Will Vote For You For President?

If you thought you were casting a vote for President of the United States last Tuesday, it may come as a mild surprise that you were doing no such thing.

You were voting for presidential electors that would cast the official vote for the party winner when the Electoral College meets in Lansing on Monday, Dec. 16.

There were 21 electors on the Democratic side and the same number on the Republican side. This is the time honored system wherein each state is allowed as many electors as there are representatives in Congress. Michigan has 19 representatives and two senators, making the total of 21.

BUT THE CATCH in the system, and most surprising to many people, is that only the representatives of the winning side will cast votes.

In this case, it will be the Democratic electors because Vice President Hubert Humphrey carried the state.

If you voted the Republican ticket or for Wallace, your vote for President was lost entirely and won't figure in the Electoral College.

By the long-established custom, electors vote for their party nominee, though there is nothing in the U.S. Constitution that binds them to that choice.

Boiling from the party is unlikely. Since 1850, only eight electors have voted contrary to the public choice at the polls. None of the eight was from Michigan.

OBSEVERLAND will be represented by three electors when the Electoral College meets.

They are Mary Emerson, Adrian; Vincent Pettipiece, state representative from Westland, and Willis Brewer, Oakland County Democratic chief.

Mrs. Emerson will represent the 2nd Congressional District, which includes the Plymouth area; Pettipiece, the 15th, including Garden City, Westland and Canton Township and Brewer, the 18th, including Livonia, Redford and Farmington.

On Dec. 16, their votes will be sent to the presiding officer of the U.S. Senate, where they will be read, along with the votes of the other 49 states, at a joint session of Congress on Jan. 6.

At this time, the official announcement of the choice will be made.

Hixson At Large

By DUMONT F. HIXSON, JR.

"The child who does not know how to create learns quickly enough how to destroy. Note that the vandalizers of schools and churches are almost always those individuals who are totally lacking in skills.

The rickety and destroyer likewise are almost always completely lacking in skills, even though some rioters were involved in non-creative middle-management positions. Destructiveness, however, is the symptom rather than the cause of a disruptive society.

Destructiveness may be internalized as well as directed externally. The hippie, unlike the activist, is singular in his lack of skills. The hippie is the love-child who hates the world. It is always easier to renounce the world if one has nothing to renounce.

WHAT PART do the schools play?

After the third grade, education is almost completely irrelevant. Moreover, that which is relevant is fragmented. Psychology studies are disturbing in that they do not reveal any significant increase in problem-solving ability after the third grade.

The child of five is a creative genius. He is destroyed by the teacher who is more concerned with the spitting of infinitives than the spitting of the atom. The child of five is an intuitive genius. Education makes him an automaton.

Yet the blame rests not with the teacher. The teacher is himself a victim of the tyranny of precedent, the same educational system and former coaches in administrative board rooms.

THE PROBLEM is, perhaps, a confusion of ends with means.

Children, therefore, need skills, tangible skills ... concrete skills. Eric Hoffer says, "I would teach children in grammar school how to compose music, how to plan cities, how to build houses. And by the time they get to be juveniles, they will be so busy exercising their skills they will have no time for juvenile delinquency."

Mastery, self-esteem and knowing are in a systematic relationship. Perhaps, if there is to be educational reform, the custodians will have to assume control of the schools.

PARCELUS SAID, "He who knows nothing loves nothing ... He who can do nothing knows nothing." If the child is father to the man, men today are fragmented and alienated. Heus should be wrapped in master. Abstracts are generated from that which is specific and concrete. But education today is only one-half a metaphor.
