and also qualified in floor exercise.

She performed on bars for the first time last year, and Dwyer has looked forward to her competing all-around this year.

"She's just starting to come around now," Dwyer said, adding Ulewicz was unable to work out last summer. "I think she was a little down at the beginning of the season, but we're starting to see what she can do."

"She's a very talented athlete. She's involved in a lot of things — track, diving, cross country. What she does is limited by the season we have, and she has accomplished quite a bit. She's getting close to where she was last year."

Seymour, who set a Farmington High record on bars with a 9.4, missed the meet with Livonia, because she was in Florida for a club meet. She had an all-around best of 36.80 and was 17th in the Division 1 state meet.

"Clara is very capable of scoring nines on each event," Dwyer said. "She's a very determined and competitive individual. She definitely stands out on bars and floor. Those have been her strongest events. She can score 9.3 in either one of those."

Farmington is strengthened by the addition of freshman Sarah Houchins, who has been training in Texas and moved back to Michigan at the end of last year.

She'll be eligible at the start of the second semester.

"She's a pretty serious gymnast," Dwyer said, adding Houchins is a Level 10 gymnast. "She's going to average nine-something on each event."

"It takes six or seven individuals who can score 8.5 or higher to make a team that scores 140 or higher, so you need depth. You just can't have three girls. Three girls won't cut it."

Farmington has eight more who can score in the mid eights — Lieberman, sophomores Nicole White, Alaina Perry, Natalie Oleksa, Rachel Richardson and Tabee Fisher and freshmen Dayna Warheit and Lindsay Smith.

Lieberman is the typical high school gymnast who has worked hard and made great strides, according to Dwyer, who added that Lieberman couldn't do a back handspring when she started but was the second-highest scorer on beam and floor Thursday.

"Warheit is a workhorse," Dwyer said. "She works hard in practice, and it shows in the meets. If some girls can start working as hard as she is, they'll see similar results."

"Smith is right up there score-wise with her. Lindsay is a very talented individual with a lot of potential."

"Another girl turning it on from last year is Nicole White. She's more mature now; she's a talented individual who is starting to work hard, and it's starting to show."

Four others who score in the mid sevens to low eights are sophomores Jarrah Hargitt and freshmen Lauren Karcz, Melanie Bendick and Kim Pevan.

"Those girls would be on the A team at a lot of other schools," Dwyer said.

Dwyer hopes Farmington can do well in the WIAA and regional meets and qualify for the state finals, but he knows there are a lot of other good teams out there, too.

"I've had good teams not live up to their potential," he said. "That's what is exciting about this year, seeing if they can develop into what they're capable of."

"We're fortunate to get a couple level nines or higher, but there are other teams that got those same type of girls. There are more club girls in gymnastics than ever before. That's why we're seeing the scores go up.

"Potential is great, but how hard you work in practice is what makes the good teams."
