

Hills video producers win national, regional awards

Two videos produced by David Tietmeyer and Jacob Nothstine of the Farmington Hills Video Production Division have been selected as the 2001 National Hometown Video Festival Award winners.

"Storm Drains Aren't Garbage Cans," a video designed to educate the public about the proper use of storm drains, was selected as a National Hometown Video Festival Winner. "Teen Extreme," a video about a teen program offered through the Farmington Hills Youth & Family Services division, received an honorable mention.

The videos were selected from among 1,700 entries. The National Hometown Video Festival is sponsored by the Alliance for Community Media, an organization dedicated to the preservation and promotion of Public Access Television. The awards will be presented in Washington, D.C., in July.

These video awards are just two of 11 awards the Farmington Hills Video Production Division has received over the past year.

They include:
■ Two National Videographer

Awards for "Storm Drains Aren't Garbage Cans," and "Adolescent Depression: Helping Depressed Teens." The Videographer Awards is a national awards organization that helps set the standards for the video production industry.

■ Two National Telly Finalist Awards for "Storm Drains Aren't Garbage Cans," and "DPW Employee Safety Training." The prestigious Telly Awards recognize outstanding television commercials, video productions, and films.

■ Three regional Philo Awards

for "Nature in the Hills," "Farmington Hills Police Department 1999 Annual Report," and "Teen-Age." The Philo Awards are sponsored by the Central States Region of the Alliance for Community Media, and recognize regional excellence in video production.

In addition to national and regional awards, the Video Division was recognized by the Farmington Hills Youth & Family Services division with a plaque of appreciation for video programming informing residents about our Youth Centers and teen information on Channel 8. David Tietmeyer of the Video Division was also given a Civilian Citation by the Farmington Hills Police Department for his contributions to a police training video, "Traffic Stop and Racial Profiling." The police video has been distributed to many police departments throughout Michigan.

Most of these award-winning videos can be seen throughout the month on local cable Channel 8. For more information, call (248) 442-7634.
