This thing of doing in Rome as the Romans do is not always the best plan, says the Popular Magazine. It you don't believe it, Miss Janee of Chicago, will tell you a story to prove it. Miss Addams knew a wealthy woman who delighted in doing works of charity, such as sending misslonaries to foreign fields and on one occasion she put up the money to send a misslowary to the Caroline islands. Soon after his arrival on the scene of his activities the religious man sent his benefacters a photograph of himself and his wife.

Whence the rich woman wrote whence the religious has sending that his wife, no order to win the confidence of the natives, should throw away her fine clothes and wear the costume at the Islands. Two months later she received this answer:

"Inclused it he camplete costume worn by native women. My wife awaits jurther word from you before adopting it."

The native dress consisted of a piece of woven straw, two incless wide and eight incluse long.
