Farmington Observer

Your hometown newspaper serving Farmington and Farmington Hills for 115 years

Supplement lists foreclosures

Special supplement: The Observer and Eccentric newspapers will distribute a special 24-page publication for the Oak-land County Treasurer's Department, called "Notice of Foreclosure" beginning Dec. 27. This publication lists thousands of business and residential properties and the amount of back taxes owed on them. Copies of the supplement will be available for purchase at a cost of 75¢ each, at the Farmington Observer office, 33411 Grand River:

Walt and see: Our review of this year's state legislature might sound a little cynical, but between redistricting and pay raises, our elected officials made out just fine. / A6

Afghanistanism: As the world's problems become our problems, we are not sad to see 2001 go. / A7

ENTERTAUNMENT

Celtic style: It's been a few years since Seamus Connolly used to go from door to door playing his fiddle and singing on the day after Christmas./B1

INDEX

Apartments/F2 Automotive/F6 Classified/E,F Classified

Jobs/F4 Obituaries/A5 Opinions/A6 Index/E10 Crossword/F3 Entertainment/B1 Real Estate/E10

Thursday, December 27, 2001 www.observerandeccentric.com

Hills boy caught in serial attacks

BY PAUL R. PACE STAFF WRITER

ppace®be.homecomm.net
A 14-year-old Farmington Hills boy,
who has a record of personal and fami'js troubles, is facing charges in Probate Court this week in the attempted rape of a woman around midnight Priday in the Green Hill Apartments complex, said police Chief William Dwyer.
Police said the boy confessed to three abduction attempts this month in two Farmington Hills apartment complex-

The first two attempts had police issuing warnings to women living in those complexes to be on their guard.

Dwyer said the latest attack was the most violent:

Most value in the state was to be most violent:
According to police on Friday, the youth, whose family lives in the Green Hill complex, broke into an apartment in the complex and called an escort service to the apartment. The apartment owners returned so the suspect fled through a back door, but was waiting for the woman.

Ho put a butcher's knife to her back and covered her mouth and took her into the stairwell of another apartment building and allegedly tried to rape her five times, Dwyer said.

The woman put up a struggle, scratching and pinching the suspect. She managed to escape and ran to the car in which she arrived with a driver. The driver called 911.

The victim was treated for minor injuries and released from Botsford Resettal.

Hydrica Manager Hospital.

Throughout the night, officers searched the area and found a roll of duct tape in a nearby woods and a newspaper ad for an escort service in a carnort.

carport.

By daylight police had a composite of the suspect and canvassed the area asking residents if they had any information.

Bargain hunters:

One woman said she had seen the youth hanging around the area after midnight, Dwyer said.

Police received consent to search the hapartment by the boy's parents and found clothing belonging to the latest within victim.

"In every attack, his boldness was increasing," Dwyer said.

The previous attacks occurred in the Green Hill complex around 7 p.m. Dec. 16., while the other was around 8.45 p.m. Dec. 4 in the Windemore Apartments on Halstead north of 10 Mile.

Please see ATTACKS, A4

Still shopping

Natalie Damson stocks up for a new apartment at Central Michigan University. She and mom, Karen Dawson of Farmington Hills were shopping in downtown Farmington on the day after Christmas. Karen got some ornaments from the Bon Ton

Shoppe.

Despite economic woes, local shopping holds up

While the state and national economics have suffered in recent months, local residents and businesses have reported their holiday shopping habits or sales figures were not drastically changed compared to last year.

ear. Shoppers at the Target Store 1 Farmington Hills were busy doing last-minute gift buying on Christmas Eve. 'I'm here for the last minute things my husband forget to get,' laughed Beth Rice of Farmington Hills, who was shopping at the department store with her young daughter Rebecca, there to buy a toy for a relative.

Resecca, there is only a way to a relative.

The economy affected Beth's buying this holiday only a little bit, she said.

James and Kathy Balow of Houston were up visiting their

Please see PURCHASES, A

Shop 'til you drop: Marlene Roe o

Livonia puts a bag in her trunk from DOTS. Her friend, Kim Booker, said she would be looking for deals on

Hills should weather out \sim financial storm

By Paul R. Pace Staff Writer

The city of Farmington Hills should be able to weather out the storm of the downturn in the state economy, and an anticipated decline in state shared revenues that supports the city's budget. According to auditors with Plante & Moran, the state's slowing economy will affect cities as lawmakers cut revenues for communities to make up for a deficit in the state budget.

The Hills' fund balance of $5.8 million allows enough leeway for expected and unexpected financial changes, without affecting the level of service provided of Plants & Moran.

Auditors delivered the annual financial report at a recent council meeting, pointing out the city's property tax rate has reemined virtually the same for the past five years.

for the past five years.

So far, auditors predict lawmakers may cut state shared revenues by 1.3 percent. Those revenues account for about 19 percent of the city's total genabout 19 percent of the city's total general fund revenues. The city's fund balance of nearly $6 million accounts to about neven weeks' worth of expenditures.

Other factors that could affect the city's budget in the future, auditors said, are telecommunication proposals being debated by legislantors. Under one scenario, the city could lose a share of its lease revenues from telecommunication companies that use the city's rights-of-way.

For fiscal year ending June 30, 2001, general fund revenues totaled $43,453,000, while expenditures totaled $39,735,000.

Among the highlights of the audit are:

re:

The city's taxable value increased

Please see FINANCES, A4

Adviser offers dynamic vision for 'aerotropolis'

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER hgallagher@oc.homecomm.net

Imagine a dynamic metropolis of high-tech industries, just-on-time delivery centers, international corpo-rate headquarters and a rich mix of high-end hotels, restaurants, recre-ation complexes and shopping malls to support it.

Now imagine this 21st century development being anchored by Wayne County Detroit Metropolitan Airport

See Phil Power's column, A7

and Willow Run Airport.
John Knsarda says Southeast Michigan is ready for an "acrotropolis."
Kasarda, director of the Kenan Institute of Private Enterprise and distinguished professor of management at the Kenan-Flager Business School, University of the North Carolina, presented his vision to a group of community and business leaders Dec. 18 at a meeting organized the Wayne County Department of Jobs and Economic Development.

Department us over an even and a $63,000 4-1/2 ments contract with Wayne County to help define and market development ideas and business strategies around the airports and help target potential Future serotropolis: This Wayne County map shows the ring road connecting Metro and Willow Run airports and current land use.

developers for the proposed Pinnacle
Aeropark development south of Metro Alrport.
Kasırda said he will be looking at how airports help cut costs, increase Al

productivity and expand market reach. Ho said ho will be looking at trans-portation logistics, especially at Willow Run with its axtensive cargo business. And he will look at strategies for attracting international corporate

"What are the factors that are ulti-mately going to affect investors, pri-vate sector investment in and around the airports?" he said.

Current planning

Work has already begun on transforming the area around the county's two international airports. The proposed Pinnacle Aeropark, an 1,800-acre mixed use project in Romulus and Huron Township, is expected to attract office, commercial and high-tech industrial development, hotels and an 18-bole coffconder.

ole golf course. Romulus, Huron Township, Taylor Romulus, Huron Township, 18ylor and Wayne County have also contracted with McKenna Associates to draw up a master plan for a "ring read" development connecting the two airports, Sally Hodges, vice president of McKenna Associates, presented the Proposal at the Dec. 18 meeting at the Crown Plaza Hotel, just north of the airport.

Grown Plan Hotel, just active it the airport.

The ring road development would be bounded on the east by Inkster Road, on the west by Willow Run Airport, on the north by Ecores Road and on the south by I-94 and east of I-275 by

Home Delivery: 734-591-0500