Wisdom Is a Virtue

The Greek philosopher Socrates was fond of saying that no one would knowingly do wrong. However, those who debated with him were quick to point out that there is a wealth of evidence to the contrary. Just look at all of the people who knowingly lie, cheat and steal in order to get their way. Socrates always contended that the people who do these things simply do not understand that they are harming themselves, and thus they do wrong out of ignorance. Anyone who is aware of the consequences of evil upon their soul should flee from evil action and embrace good. The wise person knows that wrongdoing harms the perpetrator by tarnishing his or her soul. On the cosmic level, since God's spirit animates everything and is suffused throughout all of creation, it becomes clear that the pain and suffering of the most insignificant creature is at the same time the pain and suffering of the whole, and that the wrongdoing of any member of the whole affects that whole adversely. This is why our sins harm not only us, but are even a source of sadness to God.

He who does good is of God; he who does evil has not seen God.
R.S.V. 3 John 11
