Planning for Your Future

We have the idea of eternity within us, seemingly placed there by God to remind us of our immortality. What a cruel cosmic joke it would be if nature had implanted the idea of God and eternity within us only to disappoint our expectations. Since nature is usually a benevolent and abundant provider of our needs, there is little reason to think that it would fool us with respect to the idea of eternity. God has given all of His creatures some form of special protection. Some have tough shells, like the tortoise; others are fleet of foot, like the rabbit. Humans are not particularly strong, fast or well-armed, but we have been blessed with greater mental powers than most of God's other creatures, and our mental powers include the power of foresight, or anticipation of the future. The idea of eternity forces us to ultimately anticipate the future and makes us more attuned to the truly important things, the eternal things such as God, the immortality of our souls, and the pursuit for virtue. Think often of these things and you will be planning well for your future.

He has made everything beautiful in its time; also he has put eternity into man's mind.
