Knights of the Ku Klux Klan T-shirt occurred on the grounds of the Farmington City Hall.

Two men were arrested and held briefly in the Farmington lock-up and then released.

Four juveniles were arrested on concealed weapons charges for carrying knives and blackjacks and were released to their parents.

The entire day cost Farmington taxpayers an estimated $15,000-$20,000, according to Frank Lauhoff who was then Farmington Public Safety Director. Officers aided in the crowd control effort, Lauhoff said in news reports.

That included 23 from Farmington, 15 from Farmington Hills, 24 Michigan State Police troopers and more than 50 Oakland County Sheriff's deputies, including 15 on horseback.
