Edward D. Easton's Story of His At-tempt to Hire a Typowriter In Southern Town.

Edward D. Easton, who claims that he made the largest single fee of any shorthand reporter in the world when he collected $75,000 from the lawyers in the famous Star from the lewyers in the lambus Star Route trials, was sent to report an important hearing in a small south-ern town. The work was so pressing that he found he needed an assist-ant who could typewrite. Searching for such a person, he sent out mes-sages, advertised in the country pa-pers, and made desperate appeals for somebody to locate the man.

He waited at his hotel all day without a sign of an assistant, and went to bed that night extremely worried because his work dependent. absolutely on his getting some one to belp him. Shortly after midnight he was aroused by a knock at the Apprehensive Editor Sonds His As-sistant Message That Causes Con-sternation in Office.

A few months ago, when a de-pression in the steel industry was feared throughout the country, the editor of an eastern iron and steel journal was on a tour of the week. Apprehensive lest his junior in the office at home give editorial utter-ance to pessimistre tiews and weak-en public confidence still further, the editor hastened to a telegraph office and dispatched, a brief message of advice.

"TIME TO READ."

On the prairie one had time to read. I heard Arthur's mother say; that there was so little time for children to read when they arer sging; graphed to the metropolitan police to school, and I wondered. I didn't see how there could be such a thing as not having time to read. You don't think about taking time to play for the first time.

The party finally reached the little iron ladder that runs up from the water to the landing platform, but they were not greeted by William Taylor, the keeper. Their fears were realized, for they found Taylor kneeling at his bedside as if in prayer. He was dead. SUPERSTITION IN HUNGARY.

A terrible instance of superstition was brought to light, recently, in Buds Pesth, Hungary. A boy of fourteen died some time ago in a small village. A farmer, in whoes employment the boy had been, thought that the gbost of the latter connected to him every night. In orappeared to him every night. In or-der to put a stop to these supposed visitations the farmer, accompanied by some friends, went to the ceme-

Bill Musham, when chief of the Chicago fire department, went into a fierce situation at the risk of his life. The battle with the flames and with the falling timbers and bricks had been terrific and company align ments had been lost.

In a perilous situation he found pipeman, dazed but belligerent. He held one end of a hose that was no heid one end of a nose that was no longer effective, but to which he clung devotedly.

"Where are you from?" shouted Musham, making a funnel of his hands.

"From the county Mayo," shouted the fireman in return.

HOW IT STARTED.

T. A. Snider of Cincinnati, who piled up a fortune by the use of his name on catsup bottles, got all of his money because he realized that Mrs. Snider was a grand and gorgeous She made him some catsup cook. She made him some cassus shortly after they were married, and

"We ought to get a fortune out of this. Let's sell it." They did sell it and built it up into a big business, theraby annexing the fortune.—Popular Magarina.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

Tommy Deagen, soldier of for-tune and distinctive character, worked for the trolley company in the old days,—"the goad old days," he called them, but that is largely he called them, but that is largely his point of view. He had worked five or six days, and he had worked hard as conductor. He liked the work and he found it worth while. One day as he hopped off his car at the division office he saw a crowd of conductors standing around.

"What's this, boys? A strike?" he asked in surprise

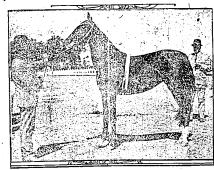

"What's this, boyer A striber he asked in surprise.
"Nope," was the reply; "this is pay day. Didn't you know it?"
"What?" said Deagen; "do they pay you too?" Poston Record.
