B. A. Holden's Platform

In the space allotted to Mr. Berto A. Holden on the first page, will be found, a frank statement of what he favors and opposes. This is a good plan for a man who asks the suffrages of the people. If he is honest enough to put himself on record in such a public manner he can safely be trusted to carry out his pledges.

Mr. Holden's candidity seems to meet with almost universal favor judging from the newspapers throughout the district and he is especially strong among the farmers who feel that one of their number, with the ability that Mr. Holden possesses, would be of value in the state legislature.

Dr. Holcomb's Fish Stories

The following letter has been received from Dr. S. D. Holcomb and is printed for the benefit of the many friends of the doctor:

Although quite a distance from you we have not forgotten our old friends at home. We are certainly having the time of our lives. The fishing is beyond all expectation.

"Bass and long" fishing comprises the great sport and we have had exceptional success, catch more than we know what to do with cannot give them away to our neighbors and really have to quit on account of an over supply. We are not allowed to take 'longer' under two feet long, pike under 15 inches and bass under 2 1/2 pounds.

The motor boat is running fine; we take a trip every day. The season is beyond any question the finest I have ever seen and climate nothing to equal it. I have been wet every day since I came here and simply let the clothes dry on my hide. No cold, rheumatism, aches or pains, simply a wash off and that is all there is to it.

Blueberries are very plentiful on our island. About every morning we go out and pick about a peck and usually they are gone the same day.

We have quite a number of very fine people on the river and many of them have called on us. My old congenial friend, Frank G. Scott, has done everything possible to make this one glorious time for us all.

I am about to hit the bed, so please excuse this short note.

Milford's Home Coming

We see by the Detroit papers that Milford has had another most successful and profitable "homecoming." We understand that Milford has made this an annual affair. In conversation with certain citizens of that town we are informed that Milford could hardly be persuaded to give up this annual gathering. It helps their town they say. It makes the citizens ambitious to show the home comers each year that real progress has been made since they met the year before. The home comers on the other hand bring new ideas from the big outside world which the old home town can use to better its condition.

One citizen expressed it in this way: "It fosters a genuine and helpful town spirit. It makes boosters of every citizen for Milford. It encourages our merchants to be more modern in equipment and in method. It helps us socially by bringing our citizens more closely together in a social way. It causes our officials and every citizen to have more civic pride, and help keep our town attractive in appearance, clean and wholesome morally and it keeps us progressive. It advertises our town and helps to keep it on the map." Farmington would enjoy and doubtless would profit, by having some such gathering each year. Why not try it?
