Gus Stoyanoff
Services for Gus Stoyanoff, 89, of Plymouth were held March 31 at St. Clement Orthodox Church in Dearborn with the Rev. Michael Arbanas officiating. Burial followed at Glen Eden Memorial Park in Livonia.

Mr. Stoyanoff was born Dec. 6, 1913 in Macedonia and died March 28 in Plymouth.
He attended Western High School and the Ford Trade School and worked for a brief time for the Ford Motor Company. He went into the restaurant and bar business in the early 1930s and was involved with ownership and operation of many establishments on the near west side.
He was probably best known for co-owning with his younger sister and husband, the Great Lakes Bar and Bar BQ, a popular eatery on Detroit's west side known for its chicken and rib dinners. In the early 1960s, he built and operated a fine dining establishment in Farmington, called Stoyanoff's which later became the Danish Inn.
Like the Great Lakes, his Farmington restaurant also graciously hosted many state politicians during their travels between Detroit and Lansing, and several local TV personalities. Later in his career, he returned to work for the Ford Motor Co., and worked in the Livonia Transmission Plant until he retired.
He is survived by his wife Marie of 65 years; daughter, Diana (William) St. Clair; sons,

Mr. Stoyanoff

Peter (Judy) Stoyanoff and Nick (Tish) Stoyanoff; brother-in-law, Jim Kostoff; 10 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

Rose Marie Gregor
A memorial service for Rose Marie Gregor, 77, of Farmington will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, April 4, at St. Alexander Church in Farmington Hills.
Ms. Gregor was born May 27, 1925, and died March 28, 2003. She dedicated her time to teaching the art of dance to thousands of Oakland and Wayne County youth. She began her teaching career in 1943 in Detroit and in 1963 she established the Ballet and Jazz School at The Community House in Birmingham. Mrs. Gregor celebrated 52 years as a dance teacher in Michigan before she retired in 1993 and received a commendation from President Clinton for her distinguished career.
Ms. Gregor was accredited to teach classical ballet by the Cecchetti Council of America, Dance Masters of America Inc., Dance Educators of America, National Association of Dance & Affiliated Artists, the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing, London England and Austrian Russian Ballet Society for Music Theatre.
She was an executive board member of the Cecchetti Council of America, was a past Principal of the Cecchetti Teachers Seminars at Michigan State University's Lifelong Education Program and at the School of Cleveland Ballet. Ms. Gregor was a guest teacher at Cecchetti Seminars throughout the country and was in constant demand as a Cecchetti Method examiner nationwide.
She is survived by her son, Edward; daughter, Gayle Gregor Norris (Michael Norris); and grandchildren, Tony and Ryann.
