Ask and You Shall Receive

Although we are often afraid to ask for what we want, that is usually the best and most direct way of achieving it. Whether it concerns asking someone for a favor or to gain information, many of us feel like we are imposing on others or prying when we ask. But asking someone to help you, or asking someone how they feel are important aspects in any good relationship. A relationship grows with communication, but if we are afraid to ask for what we want, the relationship may wither. Many of us have experienced situations where we are reluctant to ask someone how they feel about something. At times, we may be afraid of pressuring the other person, or we simply may not want to be intrusive. But usually after getting up enough nerve to talk about the issue, our efforts can lead to a very productive and satisfying conversation that helps build the relationship. Likewise, building our relationship with God is just as important. In the Bible, there are numerous places where we are told that God wants us to ask Him and He will supply the desire of our hearts. Good communication with God, as well as with those around us, will make our lives more fulfilling and meaningful.

Ask, and it will be given you; seek, and you will find; knock and it will be opened to you
