A Farmington lad tossed for the basket from the middle of the floor. Our neighbor, eager to direct the shot into the basket, lifted his arm to "hurray," and hit another man's wife flush on the jaw. She wavered but hung on gamely and kept her feet and smiled. He apologized profusely. The game wasn't the same after that for him. He couldn't use his arms freely any more—just had to keep his hands in his pockets and heave his elbows when Farmington was "up there." The incident spoiled it for him—sort of "cramped his style," as Al Johnson said of the movie he didn't like. Somebody hissed. The referee warned. They hissed again. Coach Brethour made a speech. He offered his money back (from what the School could afford to do it). Northville won the game, but Farmington won the distinction of packing more people into a given amount of space than any other team in history. At least it seemed so.

WEST POINT PARK MAN DIES SUDDENLY IN CITY

Death came suddenly last Thursday to Frank St. Clare of West Point Park. On his way home from Detroit he suffered cerebral hemorrhage and was rushed to Receiving Hospital, but death came very quickly. Funeral services were held in Detroit where his body was laid to rest. Deceased leaves a wife and six children. Mrs. St. Clare who was unable to attend the funeral, but wishes to thank her neighbors for their kind sympathy. Mrs. St. Clare expects to return to their former home in Detroit as soon as she is able.

HOLLYWOOD
Send News Letters to Herbert L. Lindstrom

Mr. and Mrs. James Carpenter attended the Redford Theatre on Sunday. Frank Mitchell has severed his connection with the Fisher Body Company of Detroit and is now employed by the Briggs Manufacturing Co. Here, the "David Harum" of Hollywood, has again turned over a big deal. Not long ago he traded his "pickup" for a shot gun, Victrola and some trinkets. Now he traded his coupe for a two door sedan and claims he got the best of the deal.

My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb

A Little Story for Husbands to Read

JONES, who had been married a considerable number of years, took counsel with one of his bachelor friends.

"It seems to me," he said, "that my domestic affairs are getting into a rut. I'm afraid my wife is getting bored. There don't seem to be any of the romance left that we had in our early married life. What is the matter?"

"I can't say," said the wise counselor. "The trouble with you is that you're like that other married man who said under similar conditions that when you'd run after you have caught it. Now, this is my advice to you: Turn over a new leaf. Start this very day. Begin paying your wife a little attention. Fuss over her just as you used to do when you were first engaged. Try to be a sweetheart to her instead of just a husband."

"My gun, maybe you're right," said Jones. "I'll do that very thing."

That evening, when he burst in the front door, his arms laden with parcels, he planted a warm kiss upon the cheek of the astonished Mrs. Jones and in tones of a well-worked-up enthusiasm, said he cried out:

"Denre, this is going to be a big night for us! Here's a ten-pound box of candy for you and here's a dozen American Beauty roses. Now I want you to slip into your best frock. I've got a table reserved at the Ritz-Carlton for dinner and I've ordered two seats for the opera. Why—what's the matter?" he added, seeing that her face trembled.

"Well, to begin with," she said, "the cook quit today. Your Aunt Clara arrived unexpectedly for a visit and there's no telling how long she'll stay, both the children were sent from school, sick with bad colds, and now—" she burst into tears—"and now, to cap the climax, you come home drunk!"
