WOMAN DRIVERS MAKE LONG DISTANCE TOURS

Long-distance driving by women, while no novelty in these days of their demonstrated skill and ability, is increasing in popularity because road development and car reliability have combined to assure extensive drives, comparatively free of hazards, according to C. H. Dunham, local Oakland-Pontiac dealer.

"While many women drivers have feared making long tours alone, even this hesitancy is being overcome, to judge by reports reaching us of women setting out by themselves to cross the continent," Mr. Dunham stated.

"One such recent report," he continued, "concerning Mrs. L. A. Johnston of Chicago, who drove alone from her city to Los Angeles at an average rate of 290 miles a day for the 3,000 mile trip. Starting early in the morning, Mrs. Johnston completed each day's drive by 4 o'clock in the afternoon."

"She states that despite the long drives each day she arrived at her destination not in the least fatigued by the long journey alone, and that the sole trouble experienced on the way was a single puncture. Her car was an Oakland All-American Six sedan."

Hastings—Extensive street improvements underway.
