

FARMINGTON BOY SHOWS WELL ON ST. JOHN'S SQUAD

Henry Otis Regarded as Valuable Material For Academy Team

One of the most successful of the forty-odd candidates for position on the first team at St. John's Military Academy, Detroit, Wis., is Henry A. Otis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Otis of Grand River avenue, Farmington, according to a report from the school, which says:

"Otis tried out at the beginning for a halfback position. Candidates for half were numerous, and included several veterans of last year's squad, which meant that most of the first year men would be used as substitutes."

"At the end of the first month, Coach Wilhelm decided to shift Otis to the position of fullback. St. John's played the School of Mines from Platteville, Wis., shortly after that, at which time the cadets' regular fullback was on the bench with an injured ankle. Otis was given an opportunity to start the game, and proved himself to be a valuable player."

"Although stocky, he is rather short, and does not look like the typical plunging fullback. The Miners' linemen were both tall and heavy, yet almost every play which sent the cadets' little fullback through their line resulted in a gain. There were more spectacular gains made around the ends by the other three backs, but no one did more for the team in the way of steady gains and dependable work than Otis."

"An injured knee has kept Otis out of the game for several weeks. He is one of the fastest of the backfield men, and another season should see him listed as one of the most valuable as well."

DRIVERS ESCAPE UNHURT AS AUTO, TRUCK COLLIDE

Resident of West Point Park In Accident On Farmington Road

Occupants of an automobile and a truck escaped injury Tuesday evening in an accident on Farmington road, in which both cars were turned over into a ditch. Both vehicles were damaged.

Mrs. Richard Vance, a resident of West Point Park, was driving the automobile when the accident occurred. She had been to a store and was returning home, about 7 o'clock. Driving south on Farmington road, she slowed down and turned into Bank's road. As she turned, a truck owned by a Plymouth baking company, and travelling south, apparently caught the right rear wheel of Mrs. Vance's car. The driver of the truck had seen the automobile, but put on his brakes too late to stop.

Both vehicles went into the ditch. Part of the steering-gear of the truck was broken when it struck the rear of the automobile.

DATE ON PAPER GIVES TIME OF EXPIRATION

Subscription notices were mailed out this week to readers of the Enterprise. Subscribers are asked to report any errors that may have occurred.

The expiration date of all subscriptions appears each week on the paper opposite the name of the subscriber. This affords an easy method of checking, and the Enterprise will welcome notification from any subscriber who finds the expiration as printed to be incorrect.

NEW PHONE BOOKS ARE FURNISHED THIS AREA

New telephone books are in use by subscribers of the Farmington area. There is a noticeable increase in the telephone listings in comparison with previous issues. The new directories are of a different color, a medium blue, and are more easily read than the previous issues.

Catches Young Eagle In Fields On Farm

Capturing of a young eagle, with a wing spread of three and one-half feet, was reported this week by Ivan Ortwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oortwijn, of North Farmington.

While in the fields near his home, he saw the young eagle, and managed to stun it without killing it. He took it home and still has it. Ortwin is endeavoring to sell the eagle.

"Circus Day" Planned By The Woman's Club

Circus Day comes but once a year and generally on the hottest day. Pink popcorn and red lemonade become a part of everyone's diet on circus days, and red and green balloons floating over the heads of a happy crowd.

However, the Farmington Woman's Club is going to change the calendar around by staging a real three ring thriller at the Farmington Town Hall in the form of a musical comedy called "Circus Solly" on January 13 and 14.

Further details about "Circus Solly" will be announced later.

EXCHANGE CLUB'S 'LADIES' NIGHT' TO BE AT GLENOAKS

Date Selected Is December 10; Dinner, Bridge And Dancing Planned

The annual Ladies' Night sponsored by the Farmington Exchange Club will be different this year from those which have been held in the past. The usual banquet and entertainment will give way this time to an evening of dancing and bridge, following dinner.

At its meeting Wednesday noon, the Club voted to accept a suggestion made by Arthur Lamb, that the event be held at Glenoaks Golf Club. Following dinner, tables of bridge will be in play and an orchestra will furnish music for dancing.

The Ladies' Night will be held on Tuesday evening, December 10. Members are permitted to bring guests. It is expected that a number of out-of-town guests will attend, among them members of the Redford Exchange Club and their wives. Tickets will be available Friday afternoon.

ANNUAL TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE TO START; AID UNDERNOURISHED

The 1929 annual sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals, the object of which is fighting tuberculosis, includes the following projects:

- Seal sale.
- Health dramas.
- Free chest clinics.
- School health programs.
- Early diagnosis campaigns.
- Contact with medical profession.
- Exhibits at fairs and community meetings.
- Furnish informational articles to newspapers.
- Health service for schools in County.
- County health activities.
- Lectures before teachers' meetings, women's clubs, parent-teacher meetings, luncheon clubs and other groups.

The work of the Association is entirely financed from the sale of Seals.

This year as a special project the Association is co-operating with the American Legion in helping to provide milk for undernourished children in the County, whose parents are unable financially to provide milk. This special appeal is of more importance during dull time, as more people are unable to provide the necessary foods for health and proper growth for their little ones.

Letters with Seals will be sent from the Oakland County Tuberculosis Association office at 52 Wayne street. Thanksgiving Eve. For the convenience of the people in the various communities in Oakland County, the banks are co-operating in receiving Seal sale money, or the returns can be sent direct to the Oakland County Tuberculosis Association office at 52 Wayne st., Pontiac, Mich.

CHANGE MEETING

Mrs. C. W. Wilber will be hostess to the Farmington Woman's Club at the meeting on December 10. The place of meeting has been changed from that mentioned in the year book, but the program remains the same as scheduled. Mrs. Katherine Sprague has charge of the day's program on architecture and we know that each member urged to be present will enjoy Miss Sprague's able handling of this subject.

—Mrs. Evangeline Pettibone, Corresponding Sec'y.

Health Dept. Issues Bulletin On Sleep

The Oakland County Health Department is sending a message to parents, in part as follows: Do you sleep with your window open? Recent discoveries in the science of ventilation throw interesting sidelights on the ventilation of sleeping rooms and tend to modify to a considerable extent previous opinions and practice.

Less than a generation ago we heard a great deal about fresh air and foul air. All outdoor air was labelled "fresh" for want of a better term, and air indoors was supposed to be "foul." These errors are fast disappearing from our literature. Pluegge of Breslau, Germany, and Leonard Hill, of England, have shown conclusively that the bad effects in a poorly ventilated room, the headache and general feelings of discomfort, are not due to some mythical substance in the air that renders it foul, but to an excessive temperature, a high humidity, or a combination of the two.

Do you sleep better with your window open? Suppose you have a north room provided with an ordinary wooden sash, double-hung window without weather strips or a storm window. The weather is cold; Jack Frost flirts with the zero mark on the thermometer, and a moderate wind, say ten miles per hour, comes from the north. The leakage of air into the room between the sash and casement and between the upper and lower windows would be under these conditions about 60 cubic feet per minute with the window closed. Now, an ordinary adult requires for respiration about one-third a cubic foot of air per minute. So, for purposes of respiration the leakage around a closed window will supply him with about 180 times the amount of air necessary.

But to promote circulation of air in the room, and to ventilate in a satisfactory manner hygienists have set a standard of from 25 to 30 cubic feet of air per minute for each person. This is a very liberal allowance. With a leakage of 60 cubic feet per minute around a closed window under the conditions mentioned, we still have twice the amount of air required to ventilate the room when occupied by one person, or an ample supply for two persons.

Let it be clearly understood, however, that we are not advocating as a general proposition that everyone sleep with the windows closed. We are only pointing out that in cold weather there is no necessity for opening the windows to any considerable extent under the false impression that this practice is necessarily desirable or healthful.

By all means, sleep with the window open. But do not make a fetish of a fad of open window ventilation. Do not boast to your friends that your window is always wide open, irrespective of weather conditions.

There is much the medical profession does not know about colds, but there is ample evidence that a simple cold is a local infection of the membrane lining of the nose or throat. Quick changes in temperature, uncomfortable drafts, or chilling of the body upset or disturb the control of blood flow to these parts and favors the spread of infection. In this way a simple cold becomes severe as the infected area increases. If the infection invades the finer structure of the lungs, pneumonia may be the result.

Rest in bed and comfortable even temperature are the best ways to treat a cold and prevent serious complication. Be comfortable with the window open. Physical comfort should invariably be your rule governing sleeping room ventilation. If you sleep better and awaken refreshed with the window open a fraction of an inch, that is the best condition for your individual requirements. If you sleep better with the window wide open and the chilling drafts are pleasant rather than disagreeable, by all means open your window wide. But do not throw open your window in cold inclement weather and retire with chattering teeth and sleep with a blue nose and general discomfort under the mistaken idea that it is healthful.
