Exchange Club Hears Wyandotte Minister

The characteristics which every Exchange Club member should seek an strive to possess were outlined to members of the Farmington Exchange Club at the meeting Wednesday noon by Rev. R. T. Kilpatrick, pastor of Wyandotte Methodist Church.

Character, love, a definite goal toward which to work, knowledge of how to play, and a desire for services to others, were put forth by Rev. Kilpatrick as the qualities which every club member should cultivate. Rev. Kilpatrick visited the Club as the guest of Dr. H. A. Leeson.

Harrison Johnson, first vice-president, presided in the absence of Spencer Healey, president. The Club discussed the matter of having an airplane marker painted on the roof of the Ford Garage.

Wells D. Butterfield presented Nathan H. Power with a remembrance.

A Red Cat

An unusual cat is owned in Taunton, England, by H. C. Brooke. The feline has short hair which, from whiskers to tail, is dark red. It has the habit of pacing to and fro restlessly, like a caged tiger, never sitting still like the common house cat.

UNKNOWN ISLANDS IN PACIFIC OCEAN

Area Near Equator Not Adequately Charted.

Washington.—Ereos though modern mapmakers have charted almost every scrap of land on the earth, whether large or small, there may still be some uncharted islands in the vast stretches of the Pacific. Surveyors to Defoe, wishing to write of an unknown island upon which their hero is shipwrecked, might still do so without fear of contradiction if they placed it in the Pacific ocean, slightly south of the equator and about 100 miles south of the Caroline islands. This region is to the north of New Guinea; it is out of the way of steamer tracks and has never been adequately charted.

But on the whole, Robinson Crusoe would have a difficult time today trying to find an unknown desert island to get wrecked upon. In his time, a little more than 200 years ago, the Pacific ocean was dotted with thousands of unknown uncharted islands, both verdure-clad and barren.

Recalls Selkirk's Isle

The profusion of these oceanic oases, especially in the equatorial region, and the fact that they were not placed on sailing charts, made it an easy matter to pick out a nice, lonely island as remote from the world of man as a corner lot on Mars. Alexander Selkirk, the original Robinson Crusoe, lived on this island of Valparaiso, for three years without seeing another human being.

The story of the discovery and charting of the Pacific islands is a fascinating tale, replete with romance and studded with the names of many doughty adventurers. Islands have been discovered, lost and in some cases rediscovered. The Solomon Islands, for instance, were lost for two centuries and then found again. Most interesting, however, are those phantom isles, sighted once or twice by mariners of sailing ships and then never seen again. A great deal of this little-studied work is due to uncertain methods of determining latitude and longitude at sea. The real was due to the sighting of floating patches of marine life which, at distance, looked like islands. To submarine earthquake and volcanic action which might push a mass above the surface of the water temporarily, and to the ever-active imaginations of deep-water sailors!

Thousands of Phantoms Reported.

Fifty years ago more than a thousand tiny phantom isles were reported to freckle the Pacific's 70,000,000 square miles. The United States Hydrographic office at that time, published a list of reported dangers in the Pacific ocean. The list, in three volumes, contained over 3,000 reported shoals, reefs, and islands, most of them with the notation, "existence doubtful" or "position doubtful." To do the majority of these reported dangers, especially the islands, have definitely "disappeared." So have sea serpents and the other chimeras which once did the admiral's act to adventurous sailors' hearts.

Although possible, it is improbable that other islands may be discovered in the vastness of the Pacific wilderness of waves.

Heir to Millions Loses

Job; Overstays Leave

Milwaukee, Wis.—Ereos the rich are subject to disciplinary action when they overstay their vacations.

Proof of this is offered by William Woods Plankton, Jr., twenty-one, who last year took a $20 a week job in New York, after falling heir to a fortune of millions.

The youthful son of the packing company family is here today looking for a job.

"I got fired for taking too long a vacation in Europe recently," Mr. Plankton explained. "My boss was J. C. Stewart, a building engineer, who incidentally is also my maternal grandfather."

Mr. Plankton's quest for work is carried on in company with his friend, Frank Lee of San Francisco. As a diversion the young men take moving pictures of their travels.

Mule Boss Shows How and Gets Shown by Gad

Chicago.—The open spaces of Montana sent two products to an Evanston construction job, Albert Downing, superintendent, and Gad, a mule.

Gad had a Fourth of July hangover and refused to work. Downing was summoned.

"Boys, I'll show you how we handle these birds in Montana," he said. Thereupon he snote Gad forcefully with a piece of plank. Gad snarled like a fash. Two hoofs shot out landing on Mr. Downing's jaw. He was out when the ambulance arrived. The doctors at the hospital marvelled that he had any jaw left. They took ten stitches.

Gad was given a day off.

Bars One-Arm Drivers

Boston.—Massachusetts motorists may either drive or pet, but they mustn't do both at the same time, George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, has ruled. "Anyone who drives while having his arm around a pet or allows her to sit on his lap is not a proper person to operate a car," he said.
