Plan Winter Patrol Around Walled Lake

Plans are being contemplated to give Walled Lake and the surrounding territory a police patrol during the winter. It is suggested that a protection of this kind would help eliminate the losses by fire and burglary during the winter season, particularly among the cottages which are left empty from the first of October to the first of April.

The plan outlined, which would be taken care of by Walter C. Lowry and Alfred Gagnon according to present expectations, is to have an all night patrol from 8:00 p. m. to 6:00 a. m.

A complete check-up would be kept of all cottages whose owners contributed to the service and inspection made of each premise every night, doors tried and out of the ordinary conditions investigated. The patrolmen would be armed Oakland County deputies and their car would be equipped with four fire extinguishers.

The tentative cost set is $10.00 for each property owner for the season, payable in advance and all money would be deposited in the Walled Lake bank. The bank would pay the officers each week. The plan has the approval and co-operation of Sheriff Frank Schram.

Large Attendance At Walled Lake Dinner

About 150 mothers and daughters attended the annual Mother and Daughter banquet at the Walled Lake School on Tuesday night. Mrs. H. H. Savage of Pontiac, gave the principle address. She gave an interesting talk on the relation of the mother to the daughter.

Miss Lillian Price, president of the Junior Economics class, sponsor of the affair, introduced Miss Irma Curran who was toastmistress. Miss Lucetta Moss welcomed the mothers and was responded to by Mrs. J. Powers for the mothers. Eloise Coe and Lenore Richter furnished the musical part of the program, playing two duets. Mrs. Bert

Eds gave the invocation. Mrs. A. K. MacRae gave a short talk. The boys of the Junior Agricultural Club served the banquet.

FAREWELL PARTY GIVEN

About sixty friends gave a farewell party Wednesday night for Mr. and Mrs. Charles White of Shiawassee street, who leave for a visit to Germany Monday. The party was at the White residence. Mr. and Mrs. White will be gone until September.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE DON'T APPRECIATE WHAT WE HAVE

THE story is told of a little boy who used to admire the house with golden windows over a hillside several miles away. Each evening at sunset time he would get all excited about the house with the golden windows.

One day he was permitted to make the pilgrimage to the other hill in quest of the sunset. It took a long time for his little legs to cover the few miles to the neighboring hill. Finally as he gazed the place he could see nothing but an ordinary farmhouse and the windows were only glass, not overly clean.

He was the most disappointed boy in the world. His trip had been in vain. Tired and discouraged he sat down in front of the house to rest. The sinking sun was casting its rays in the direction of his own home. Lifting his eyes longingly toward home his heart leaped to his throat as he saw that his own home was the house with the golden windows.

We do not appreciate what we have because we lack the proper perspective to see its true worth. Like the boy in the story we need to get away from it to see the sun shining on it and turning it into gold. The things and persons that belong to us are too close. We need to get away from them for a while to appreciate their worth.

This is the genius of a vacation. Every man gets to the place where his work, his wife and children, his home with all its luxury begin to pall, to get on his nerve as we all say. A little distance, a little change and reason performs wonders for him.

We do not appreciate what we have because it lacks romance. It is already ours and we do not exert ourselves in its behalf. We lose interest. (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Dear Editor:

TODAY we went through a town that wasn't very prosperous. You can imagine how poor they are—they only had three traffic lights.

Downtown was a billboard listing the contributors to a new cotton glove factory; amounts from $3,000 down to $300 were listed. "Local boosters," the signboard read.

What in the world does a town want a cotton glove factory for?

Today we passed through the heart of the corn starch region. Thousands of standing ears are on their way to become chocolate pudding or bolted shirts.—Fred Barton. (Copyright)

THE ROAD THAT'S HARD TO FIND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE road was rough, and hard to find, And dark as dusk could be, And I have troubles on my mind, A way is hard to see, But I remember I kept on, And I remember night brought dawn, A little later, I recall, I found the right road, after all.

I walked, I recollect, a wood, A wood where trails were few, I stumbled on the best I could— That's all there was to do. That's all there is to do right now, Is just to stumble on somehow, To do the best I can, and pray, And wait the breaking of the day.

I'm walking some such road tonight, A road as hard to grope, But I keep watching for the light, And won't let go of hope. For I remember I kept on, And I remember night brought dawn, A little later, I recall, I found the right road, after all. (Copyright) Douglas Malloch

Drive On Rowdism Begins With Arrests

Ten arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct were made over the past week by Deputy Sheriff W. E. Coe of Walled Lake.

Nine Detroit men were arrested on Saturday. Willie Schultz, Ed. Ferusch and Willard Richter were given 20 day sentences for being disorderly.

Jack Tracy, charged with being disorderly, plead not guilty and demanded an examination which will be held May 29. The others were charged with being disorderly or drunk and paid fines of 15. They were Glen Singer, Clarence Wilson, Walter Poskitt, and Orval Schneider.

In most instances the men arrested were intoxicated and making disturbances in and around the concessions on the south shore of the lake. The officers are determined to eliminate all of this that is possible and Judge Harpster has signified his intention of aiding the officers in their work by sentencing the offenders in every case. It is felt that prompt action of this kind will discourage people of this type from frequenting this section.

WIXOM WRITER MADE OFFICER IN WRITERS' GUILD

Edna Draper Ball of Wixom was elected corresponding secretary of the Michigan Writers' Guild at a meeting Wednesday evening, May 14 in Detroit. The plans for the ensuing year which were also discussed and approved are numerous and varied. These include radio presentation by the members of their different works and writings. Many well-known authors of the country are scheduled to speak before the Guild at future meetings.
