

Pretty Girl Has Edge

Over Her Plain Sister

Pretty girls "get away with murder" in New York. Most of them, knowing the power they wield over the other sex, take advantage of the men in various ways.

The traffic policemen are particularly susceptible, and the fair ones aim their shafts particularly at them. For instance, if they want to cross a street against traffic, they merely take a step or two from the curb and then give a little shriek when a car approaches. That's the cue for the officer to look in their direction, and when he sees them smile, he holds up his hand, brings all traffic to a stop and escorts them across, exchanging a little "Arny" with them en route. And the policemen love it.

Then there are the girls who frequent soda fountains at noon. They quickly learn the names of the dispensers, and soon they will work them this way: "Oh, Artie, don't be so stingy with that whipped cream," or, "Jimmy, fill up this cup; coffee was too cold."

Well, why kick? Give the little girls a big bandout.—New York Sun.

How Color Blindness

Will Be Transmitted

When a color blind man marries a color blind woman, all children will be color blind. If the same man marries a normal woman all children will be apparently normal, though the daughters may transmit the defect to their sons. Should a color blind man marry a woman that is a carrier, half his daughters will be color blind, the other half carriers, while his sons run an even chance of being color blind or normal. When, however, a normal man marries a normal woman there will, of course, be no color blindness among the offspring nor among the descendants, unless some of them intermarry with strains that are affected. A normal man marrying a carrier may expect half his sons to be normal, the other half color blind. His daughters will all be apparently normal, but half of them will be carriers. But when a normal man marries a color blind woman he may expect all of his sons to be color blind and all of his daughters to be carriers.—Good Health.

Art of Giving

He who gives things only gives little. The real part of any present is the imaginative sympathy through which one has understood and responded to a desire in some other human being and has put something of one's self into the choice of that which will gratify this desire.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Commercialized Cupid

New York.—There is a man in the Bronx—Pinous Wallace, of No. 2015 Grand Concourse is his identity, should you ever become interested, who arranges marriages on a large scale.

It is a plain business matter with Pinous, and he has made a success of it in more than one way. Of 200 marriages he arranged in the past five years, he finds that not one has resulted in separation or divorce.

They call him a marriage broker, a schemer, but Pinous insists he is a Cupid, who charges for his arrow.

An Un-English English Visitor

About the most un-English Englishman I've run into yet is William J. Locke, the author of 22 novels, who recently came to New York after six months in Hollywood.

He dislikes cold water, hates tea, doesn't play golf, can't play bridge, and never takes strolls in the country, nor does he wear a moustache. However, he betrays his nationality by berating our social life and customs.

What surprised him was that residents of New York and Hollywood think they have a riotous time staying up now and then until 6 a. m. Why, says Mr. Locke, over in England, we often stay up at night and sleep by day. But our answer is that Mr. Locke must be mistaken.

The heavy fog in London deceives him so that by day he thinks it is night, and at night he thinks it is merely a foggy day, or something incoherent like that.

Concentrating Culture

About that city of culture which is to be erected on the Palisades. Since all residents must show college diplomas (if they can and them) what will happen if a college man marries a girl with less than a high school education?

And I suppose the dignified and intellectualized homes will not be called love nests, but culture nests.

The New Yorker, a "cultured" magazine, chafes for the consumption of local sophistication, put it in the right light, when it said:

"Our idea of a cultured person is a person who doesn't want to live in a community of cultured persons."
