A business man who has successfully conducted his own business and is thoroughly competent to be entrusted with the administration of the Sheriff's office.

If elected I promise to cut the expenses of the Sheriff's office to the minimum and enforce the laws without fear or favor.

Your Vote assures a sound and competent administration.

Paroles and Taxes

Gov. Groesbeck in 6 years paroled 9,000 prisoners—Green's administration in about 3 years 6 months has paroled 8,258. Groesbeck's annual average 1,500—Green's 2,500. Neither did anything wrong—both followed the law, because every prisoner, upon serving his minimum sentence is entitled to a parole if his record during confinement has been good.

Circumstantial Evidence

THEY had been married six months to the very day. Sally wasn't sentimental about anniversaries; she didn't expect candy or flowers; she wasn't even very much disappointed when Phil forgot the date entirely—but to have him choose that particular evening to talk to her so dreadfully, and in front of all their friends, was really too much!

"Ye Gods!" Phil had said. "Haven't you even brains enough to return a least if you can't learn to play bridge, why not admit it and quit?" Well, she had quit; she'd left not only the bridge party but Phil himself several miles behind. Sally gave a vicious gasp to the accelerator of her blue roadster and swung on two wheels round the corner into Park drive.

Early the next morning, Miss Georgia Sneath, starting on her daily trip to the meat market for Toddlie's chopbones, paused before the closed door of an apartment on the floor below her own. Usually, at that hour a burst of singing and the clatter of dishes announced to passersby that the "pretty little red-haired bride" was on the job. Today the apartment was disturbingly silent.

"Not that I'm envious," she was soon explaining to plump Mrs. Watton at the corner grocery. "You know I never pry into other people's affairs—but it did seem very queer to see, very queer indeed, I was around to the courtyard and looked up and every window was shut tight. And there was this peculiar odor. It somehow suggested a hospital to me, but it wasn't ether."

"That's it. Yes, I'm sure that was it. Don't burglars use chloroform?"

"Yes, they do. Or sometimes people kill themselves. But you say they seemed quite happy?"

"Oh, very happy! Just bride and groom, you know. And she was such a pretty little thing, with lovely red hair. Oh, dear, what do you think I'd better do?"

"Do? Well, of course your janitor would have a pass-key, but I don't really believe. . . . Oh my goodness, there's the trolley coming!"

Decidedly out of breath, Mrs. Watton sank into the seat nearest the trolley door and discovered its other occupant to be a friend of her young sister's. They fell into casual conversation, to which the older woman, after a time, contributed the story she had just heard.

"The Waverly Court Apartment," Lorna exclaimed. "Yes—I know where they are. I'll be looking for details in the paper. So long."

Phil Armstrong looked up from his desk, annoyed by the chatter of the filing clerks inside the next partition. He had rose from his chair to ask for quiet, overhead some one say "The Waverly Court Apartments" and sank back to listen.

"Go go go, Lorna. It's like hearing a newspaper story before it comes out."

"Only I don't know the end. Anyway this young couple had been living there for about six months, and they seemed crazy about each other, she said—which doesn't sound like suicide. But all doors and windows were shut tight and stuffed round the edges with rags, and burglars wouldn't do that. Then there was this terrible smell of chloroform, simply overpowering, and no answer to all their pounding on the door."

"My heavens, girls—what alls Mr. Armstrong? He's been acting queer all morning and now he dashed off without his coat or hat."

At almost the same moment, in a downtown tea room, a plump matron suddenly exclaimed to her bosom friend: "My dear, do look at that girl. Teasing, out as though the place was on fire."

"She was listening to you," remarked the even plumper friend, placidly sipping a frosted chocolate, "and when you said 'Waverly Court Apartments' she just jumped out of her chair."

So it happened that Philip Armstrong and his very new and very red-headed wife fell into each other's arms at the door of a certain much-talked-of apartment.

Restore Government to the People

BRING BACK PROSPERITY

At a time when thousands of people are starving, not knowing where their next meal may come from, and facing eviction with not a place to go—our representatives in Congress tells us that these things are only in our minds. Are we to continue with such a representative in Congress who has ignored or refused to give the time and help necessary to farmers, working people and business men alike because he is in Congress for only one purpose—and that is to sacrifice everything in favor of the dictates of the Anti-Saloon League?

Are we longer to sacrifice the welfare of the Sixth District by the misrepresentation in Congress of a man who passed from the superintendency of the Anti-Saloon League in Michigan to Congress and carried the interests of that organization into Congress with him?

Are we to have a one-time man who should represent the thousands of interests of the people of this district continue to act as the votary of a sinister organization that has only one idea in mind and that is working by every means fair and foul to destroy government of the people, by the people and for the people?

You are faced with the answers to these questions in the Primaries on September 9th. Will you vote to show your American sovereignty—as an American king in your own right—or will you vote to continue as a vassal to the most monstrous organization this nation has ever faced?

We appeal to you to vote for a man who stands for sane, honest government and laws, devoid of hypocrisy, who is broad enough to do justice to all the interests of his people.

We appeal to you to vote for a man who recognizes that thousands of his people are suffering from want and does not tell them that it is only in their minds.

We appeal to you to vote for a man who will work with might and main to do all in his power to help bring back business and prosperity, so that the products of the farmer will again have value and that there will be work for the workers and wages that bring them the necessities and some of the luxuries of life.

We appeal to you to work and fight against a man who has ignored the good of his people, who has been so small-minded that he has been able only to act as the errand boy for the Anti-Saloon League at a time when, if he had any constructive ability, he should have applied it to the end of bringing back good times and relieving the suffering thousands.

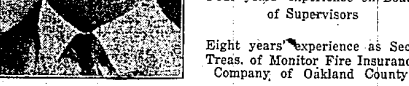

It is up to you to say whether you want a man who will excuse his incompetence and inability to represent you by telling you that your hardships exist only in your mind—or whether you will vote for a man who will devote his efforts to help restore normal good times in this country once more.

If you believe as we do that our representative in Congress should give adequate consideration to the many questions and measures that affect the welfare of his district and of the country, Then you will vote for Seymour H. Person for Congressman.
