Force of Habit
 The recent bride was wearing a decidedly crystalline look instead of the anticipated beaming smile.
 "My dear, you haven't already had your first quarrel, I hope?"
 "Oh, no," replied the bride; "It isn't quite so serious as that. It's just that I was shopping and, you know I've always had to spell out my maid as my name is misspelled. It's so unfamiliar to most of them. It didn't occur to me that my married name was simpler, so, before I thought, I told the clerk to send the things to Mrs. John Smith, and I spelled out Smith!"

Perfect English
 The "Bibby letter" was written by President Lincoln to Mrs. Bibby at the time he learned that she gave six of seven sons to the Union cause. It is considered one of the best examples of rhythmical English and is written in somewhat the same manner as follows. It is said that Oxford university regards the Gettysburg address and the Bibby letter as two examples of beautiful rhythmical English.

Land Near South Pole "Perfect Health Resort"

Little America, on the Bay of Whales, 750 miles from the South Pole, is the most perfect health resort in the world. There are no germs there, for germs cannot exist in a temperature of from 65 to 70 degrees below zero. The continent is a great plateau, 10,000 feet above sea level.

"The only drawbacks are the necessity of continued transportation," says Joseph Rucker, Farmington cameraman with the Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd South Pole expedition, who brought back to the United States a film-record of the expedition, "With Byrd at the South Pole," which will show at the Redford Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, September 24 and 25.

Antarctica is 15,000 miles from New York and the trip requires from 48 days to three months.

"Winds attain a velocity of 150 miles an hour on the Rockefeller mountains, near the Pole," Rucker says, and pile the dry, powdery snow in vast drifts. The hardest job of the expedition was not flying over the Pole, exploring or keeping alive. It was the continuous snowing of snow, 365 days a year.

"For instance, when we dug out our Ford airplane for the flight over the Pole, we had to remove 42 tons of snow which had accumulated about it. All of the 42 men in the expedition turned out for the work in shifts and completed it in 24 hours. Each time we prepared a plane for flight, the same thing had to be done."

The terrific velocity of the wind caused the wreck of one of the Byrd planes while it was exploring the Rockefeller range, 175 miles from the base camp at Little America. Although buried in snow, tied down and filled with blocks of ice, the plane was swept away and smashed against the mountain side three miles distant. Only the daring of Admiral Byrd, who instituted a search in another plane during a three-hour lull in the blizzard, brought about the rescue of the four marooned men on the mountain.
