Bark-Beetle Harms State Fruit Trees

East Lansing.—Considerable injury to fruit trees in Michigan is caused by the Fruit Bark-Beetle which tunnels in the cambium layer just beneath the bark but this injury can be considerably lessened by careful orchard practices, according to the entomology department of Michigan State College.

This insect preferably attacks wood which has been bruised or which is weakened by disease but occasionally the borer becomes established in healthy wood. When the borer has been able to make extensive galleries beneath the bark, the numbers of the insect increase rapidly and individuals move to other trees to establish new colonies.

Brush which has been removed by pruning and left in the orchard, wood cut from fruit trees and stored near orchards, or wild cherry wood which has been cut and left on the ground make ideal quarters for the establishment of colonies which later attack fruit trees. All such prospective quarters for the borers should be burned.

Orchard trees which are so badly infected by the borer that the branches are dying should be removed and burned to prevent the migration of the borers to other trees. Orchardists who pile brush in their orchards for use in building smudge fires should never use brush taken from fruit trees. Cherry and peach trees are attacked more frequently than other Michigan fruit trees.

A parent who refused to take his children to the circus, was heard remarking to them that they could hear all about it from the kids that went.

Free Course Offered In Beautifying Home

Women interested may make their homes more attractive at little or no cost.

The Extension Department of Michigan State College is putting on a course in Home Furnishings in Oakland County this year. Every woman is eligible to belong to a group, for which no charge is made.

The following six lessons will be given beginning the first week in October:

1. The selection of upholstery material.
2. The making of slip covers.
3. Lighting in the home and lampshades.
4. Refinishing of furniture (by paint or by restoring the natural beauty of the wood).
5. Accessories with emphasis on pottery and the making of an Italian quilted pillow.
6. Flower arrangement.

Women interested should get in touch with Miss Elizabeth P. Weld, Home Demonstration Agent, Box 173 Pontiac, Mich.

Money Saved On Shoe Repairing

is money earned. A dollar or two spent on the reshap-ing and reconstruction of an old pair of shoes is equivalent to five or six dollars spent on a new pair.

There's economy in this method, and you should follow it. Your shoes will be none the worse if we do the repairing; in fact, they'll be all the better.
