

Dads and Big Brothers

and big sisters are just boys and girls grown taller, and they have not forgotten the joy of a well filled cookie jar to satisfy the appetite at hungry times. And mothers of today are just old fashioned mothers grown wiser, who save their own time and strength for keeping up with the family and leave the cookie jar to this bakery to keep filled.

ARE YOU AN EYE GUESSER?

You guess your eyes are all right. You seem to see about as well as you ever did. But are you sure you KNOW as well as you should? That is the question that no guessing will answer. And until it is answered you must remain a guesser. Better be a patient of ours and learn the truth about your eyes. Continued next Thursday

EDUCATION A CO-OPERATIVE ENTERPRISE

Once upon a time the school and home carried on the education of Mary and Johnny almost independent of one another. What children got in school included little beyond formal academic training—reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic to begin with, history, literature and "the Classics" farther along. "Preparation for living" was gained largely thru the contacts and activities of the busy home and the simple, more compact community life of yesterday.

But in the modern world education has become a co-operative enterprise, partly because of the new responsibilities that the shifting home throws upon the school, and partly because of the school's new demands upon Mary and Johnny.—Extract, reprinted, from The Graphic, September, 1930.

WALLED LAKE GIVES UP HOPE OF PAVED ROAD

With the announcement of the Oakland County Road Commission that all road building for the year would be stopped, hopes of Walled Lake village having a paved road for Spring travel were destroyed.

While the Board of Supervisors had approved the building of the mile of road through the Village, the hearing on the matter was held up awaiting the action of the Board on another petition to build a short stretch on East Main street. This delay has prevented the building of any of the pavement this year.

By Spring the Board of Supervisors may have taken action that will make it impossible to have the road built even then, it is believed.

What are your convictions on War? Do you believe peace is an impossible ideal? Come and hear Rev. Johnson Sunday morning discuss these and other questions pertaining to this subject in his sermon "The Futile Cry." At 7:30 he will preach on the theme "Going East on Religion."

In spite of the bad weather last Sunday we had splendid attendance at all services.

Next Wednesday evening he will discuss the problem of Forgiveness, based on the theme, "Having the Confidence That Our Sins Are Forgiven."

There were 42 who attended our first meeting of the Young Peoples Club last Sunday. We invite all young people to come and bring your friends. There will be a special service for the boys and girls at the same hour.

RING TRUE

Don't be what you ain't,
Je's be what you is,
If you is not what you are,
Then you am not what you is.
If you're just a little tadpole
Don't try to be a frog.
If you're just a little tail,
Don't try to wag the dog.
You can always pass the plate,
If you can't exhort and preach.
If you're just a little pebble
Don't try to be the beach.
Don't be what you ain't,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thou Shalt Not Kill Thy Neighbor's Reputation

To the Editor:
Many a man has escaped the penalty of the law, whose guilt was established in the public mind, because the evidence was not sufficient to convict, and a reasonable doubt existed in the minds of the jury. At his trial there was one Prosecutor and at least one attorney for the defense.

Before the Court of Public Opinion there is no such fairness displayed. The public is judge, prosecutor and jury, and there is no attorney for the defense. Gossip, rumor, and hearsay is freely admitted as evidence, and no evidence for the accused is considered. A denial of guilt is not given the publicity given to the accusations, or is it believed or repeated by those that know of it as is the gossip and rumor constituting the evidence upon which the accused is judged.

Man is a mixture of qualities, constructive and social, merely negative, and destructive and anti-social. At one time one side of his nature predominates, and at another time, another. His ideas should be judged on their merits and if he advocates a worthy cause, that cause should not be discredited by any discrepancy between its principles and the character assigned to him by the public. When a man gives of his best to the world and his best has value, it should be accepted. Truth is truth, and those who bring to the attention of the world are its messengers.

Propaganda of anti-social interests and gossip are two of the most destructive forces in the world today. The first disseminates lies, or distorts the truth, to gain public support for private anti-social ends, and the second associates character and destroys happiness in the same cowardly manner that the gangsters' machine guns destroy the life of their victims, and no defense is possible to the unfortunate one at whom the gossip or bullets are aimed.

Facts alleged about a man that have given him an unfavorable reputation are often not credited by the friends who are in a position to know his character and history, but the knowledge and opinion of such friends never gains the wide publicity that is given to malicious gossip and any denial by the individual himself is worse than useless. A still greater injury is done owing to the fact that a rumor repeated from mouth to mouth becomes distorted and is exaggerated at each repetition.

Many people who repeat gossip do not realize the harm they do or the lives they ruin. Their desire to hold an audience, to focus the attention of others on themselves, and the excitement incident to dramatization, furnishes the explanation of much of it, but there is a kind of gossip that is either deliberately malicious, subconsciously malicious or uttered in defense of one's private interests to discredit a cause or principle by discrediting the person advocating the cause or supporting the principle.

There are those who are well endowed emotionally and such people have the hardest time keeping their constructive side in the ascendency. Those who are emotionally negative see no excuse in the lapse of the former from a logical ethical code, from which they themselves are not tempted to depart and so much gossip is to be laid at their door. They lack charity through lack of understanding.

There is the gossip arising from personal enmity and jealousy and such gossip arises from a conscious attempt to ruin and is based upon a nature in which the destructive and anti-social elements predominate.

Another type is the one whose motivation lies in the subconscious and is the result of an inferiority complex, due to a failure to achieve. This causes them to attempt to bolster up their ego, by dragging down to their own level those who have succeeded in doing what they themselves have failed to do.

Then there is the dangerous, but not necessarily malicious type, of propagandist gossip, who, in order to defend their business, political, or social interests, attack the character of those who advocate measures inimical to their interests in order to destroy the menace by destroying its supporters.

All this should be thoroughly understood and each of us should strive to give to the world his best and encourage others to do the same, and each of us should through understanding and brotherly love help others to overcome their handicaps.

Last, but not least, we should not form or repeat adverse judgments upon a fellow-man without knowing beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt that such judgments are based upon facts, and only then when such information as we possess is given for the protection of others.

As an especial message to professed Christians, who initiate or repeat gossip, their attention is called to the words of their Master:

"Judge not lest ye be judged," and
"Love thy neighbor as thyself."
