Chevrolet Car Shown At Dealers' Meeting

Cleveland, O.—Here today was the staging by Chevrolet factory officials of the first of fifty dealer meetings to be held in the next five weeks throughout the country.

Included in a carload of equipment brought in for the meeting was a new car substantially bigger than the current model, and extensively changed in appearance.

Although the meeting was closed to the public, it was learned that H. J. Klugler, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., who attended the meeting here, told the 500 dealers and associated bankers in attendance at the City Auditorium that the car would be publicly announced the coming Saturday, and that, despite its increased size and improved appearance, it would be priced considerably below current levels.

Dramatic incidents attended the presentation of the car. It was trucked under canvas from the freight shed to the stage of the Auditorium, and there, boxed in by velvet drops and under a flood of spotlights, disclosed to the audience.

A burst of applause greeted the unveiling of the car, and when the announcement of new lower prices was made, a wild cheering dealer group interrupted proceedings for several minutes. The car is longer than the present Chevrolet, and changes and refinements are so extensive that it has a decided "big car" appearance, one dealer reported.

If the sentiment among the dealers here is an criterion, the new car ought to prove the most successful product in the history of the company.

Ships from the upper bays

You could go down to the unloading of ships as they come white-sailing in . . . and find nothing to compare with the variety of merchandise unloaded for you at the port of advertising page.

You could lift this article and that . . . but not even such close scrutiny could tell you so much about a product as is told you through the advertisements you read.

You could take the fine merchandise home, distribute it and use it in its proper places—in your pantry, draped at your windows, laid down on your floors and trampled on for years . . . but your tests would not be half so rigid as the tests already made for you of the wares that are advertised.

World variety—world scrutiny of merits inside and out—world tests that take the wares and determine them in the form you see them today . . . these make advertised products the best you can buy. The most economical—because dependable in service. The lowest priced for quality—because distributed to the world!

The white-sailed schooners, the sloops, the lighters—these from the upper bays of quality and perfection—have all unloaded here. Turn the pages for their offerings.

Read the advertisements . . . they tell you of the best that comes in; with cargoes for every use
