Recently I took dinner with some young-married friends of mine, who have a couple of small boys. They were bright little fellows and I enjoyed them immensely, with their eager, quaint questions and comment. When nine o'clock came they were ordered to bed by their father, and they went off pleasantly enough, although with considerable reluctance. About ten minutes later their mother, during a pause in the conversation, slipped quietly out of the room and was gone a very short time. When she returned, she smiled at me and answered the inquiry in my eyes. "Yes—tucking in," she admitted, flushing a little. "Ted here thinks they are getting a bit large for it, but if you could see Teddy's funny little black eyes roll up with satisfaction, you'd think it was all right."

As she spoke it was recalled of a passage in Kathleen Norris' beautiful story "Mother." The older of two sisters is having her first real love affair and the mother goes to her bedside for a confidential chat with the younger sister, on the other side of the bed, is asleep. As they murmur together in low tones, the little sister half wakes and says, drowsily: "Is that you, mother? Come and say your prayers on me tonight; you said them on sister last night." The picture of the kneeling mother is very clear. A boy's highest ideal—yes, and a man's as well—is his mother. To see his mother's face above him is the last thing every night before a boy goes to sleep is to have deeply imprinted upon his mind a picture that he will retain throughout his life and perhaps in many crises. Many mothers begin to let their boys drift away from them when the awkward, gruffish age comes along but I think most boys are secretly glad when the dock knob turns and mother comes to tuck them in.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Give Mother an Extension Telephone for Christmas

A most welcome, and inexpensive, Christmas gift which Mother surely will appreciate, is one or more conveniently located extension telephones.

In the kitchen, for example, a telephone will enable Mother to place and answer calls without having to leave her work.

A telephone upstairs will save running down to answer calls. Mother will appreciate that convenience. (So will Dad on cold nights!) And, in emergencies, such as fire, sickness or accident, an upstairs telephone is especially useful.

Extension telephones cost only 3 1/4 cents a day. To place an order, call or visit the Telephone Business Office.

"Somebody to see you!"

If everybody with something to interest you should come and ring your bell, what a nuisance it would be! Think of the swarming, jostling crowd, the stamping of feet on your porch and carpets!

Every week we know of many callers who come to see you. They never jangle the bell—they don't take up your whole day trying to get your attention. Instead, they do it in a way that is most considerate of your privacy and your convenience. They advertise in your newspaper!

In this way you have only to listen to those you know at a glance have something that interests you. They make it short, too, so you can gather quickly just what you want to know. You can receive and hear them all without noise or confusion in comparatively few minutes.

In fairness to yourself look over all the advertisements. The smallest and the largest—you never can be sure which one will tell something you really want to know.
