UNIVERSITY HIGH WINS

University High of Ann Arbor defeated the Farmington basketball team 24-7 in a game held at Ypsilanti Saturday night.

University High opened up strong by dropping two fouls and making four field goals. Cox dropped two fouls, followed by Cairns who sank one making the score 10-3 in favor of University High as the quarter ended.

The Tritons checked the University attack holding them to one basket. But the defense of University High was also very good holding the Tritons scoreless during the second quarter, the score being 12-3 at the end of the half.

The offense of opponents again began to click and sank three shots. Meanwhile Nicholson and Cox were able to drop a foul shot a piece, that being the only score made during that period.

The opponents offense was very strong also during the fourth quarter by continually making field goals running up their total to 24. Messell made a nice shot, being the only field goal the Tritons made during the entire game. University High set up an offense and defense that could not be broken up or penetrated by the Tritons. The final score: University High 24, Farmington 7.

The lineup was as follows:

Cox, Jr.; Cairns, Jr.; Haas, C.; Howarth, Jr.; Drake, Jr.; Fend, Jr.; Messell, Jr.; Nicholson, Jr.; Taggart, Jr.

University High:

Goss, Jr.; Howitt, Jr.; Lorch, C.; Anderson, Jr.; Howell, Jr.; Seely, C.; Hewitt, Jr.; Haas, F.; McCullen, C.

Relieving Pain With a Reading Lamp

A SMALL reading lamp has great possibilities in its light rays, as a reliever of pain. The rays of light seem as powerless to cure pain as the heat of the sun. The rays of light, however, in this manner, many nurses and physicians order light rays for twenty minutes, alternated with a dash of ice, which keeps up a constant stimulation of the blood in the painful area, and it is by this active action of the blood that the pain, abscess, or inflammation is removed.

rits, especially if the rays be brought down within ten or twelve inches of the area, and a cloth covers the lamp to concentrate the rays on the aching spot.

The earache, toothache, the pain in the foot or hand, knee joint, elbow or shoulder can be successfully treated in this manner. Many nurses and physicians order light rays for twenty minutes, alternated with a dash of ice, which keeps up a constant stimulation of the blood in the painful area, and it is by this active action of the blood that the pain, abscess, or inflammation is removed.

I hate to see myself down to a regular day or evening every week. I protest a matron of many interests. This belongs to a reading class which meets every Wednesday, and her laundress arrives regularly every morning. In other words, a more or less regular day for entertaining is only another way of scheduling life and making it run more evenly.

The Christmas Candle

Following an old family custom, Katherine Blair placed a lighted candle in the window. Originally serving to guide lost travelers on Christmas eve, John Blair knew it had been placed there the last three years with Kenneth in mind—the son who was too busy to come home for Christmas.

The candle's bright light had brought cheer to many, so again Katherine placed one in the window. Perhaps this year it would be Kenneth it would guide home.

A whir of a motor overhead—the night mail was arriving. There might be a letter from Kenneth.

A car stopped before the house as John Blair started for the post office. A man rushed up the steps and through the open door shouting "Merry Christmas!"

"Dad and Mom," he said. "Between embraces and handshakes he explained: 'Found out late I could come home, so I flew down with the mail.' The next words filled Katherine's heart with joy—"The candle was here!"

"How glad she was the candle was in the accustomed place—Blanche Tanner Dillin.

May Enjoy Christmas in Mansions in the Skies

It is not now the fashion to "keep your feet on the ground." It is hard to keep even one foot on the ground; the other one seems always to be up, getting into a car or an airplane; and pretty soon, there you are—both feet entirely, completely, distinctly off the ground!

What this condition may mean to future generations is hard to guess. Perhaps in a year or two people will make a date to celebrate Christmas three thousand feet up in the air.

"Come on up!" friends may be urging. "We're going to shoot a party up over Mt. Washington. Darning, charades and a fancy dress ball!"

And we shall be obliged to taxi in a car, to get to the party and be whisked about, and worry whether we can get a taxi-place home again.

And every cockpit will be trimmed in colored bibles and the trade for Christmas trees will be literally going up! Plans for this have already been made at the service entrance of a Flying Mansion in the Skies.

So don't stick to that old one about both feet on the ground. If you do, you'll find yourself frightfully lousy and left behind—Martha Banning Thomas.

Charm of Christmas

THE chief charm of Christmas is its simplicity. It is a festival that appeals to every one; because every one can understand it. A genuine fellowship pervades our common life—a fellowship of service in the world's greatest life which was given to the whole world.

The Fireside Supper

"My friends the Merryvilles are coming out this week, and I want them to see your house. Do have one of your fireside suppers, can't you?"

The speaker was the neighbor of a woman who had made a tradition of her fireside suppers and had become famous for them. Every one was eager for an invitation to one of these gay, unconventional parties, and the recent from the usual formally set dinner table, and when visitors to the community were expected, one of the choicest ways of entertaining them was to beg this particular hostess for a fireside supper.

It was all very simple. Sausages were broiled over the coals, toast was made by the guests themselves, a great pot of coffee was made on the old-fashioned iron trivet, and apples and chestnuts were roasted. The party sat around the fire, in deep chairs, divans, and on the floor, and the talk ranged from merry banter to a reading class discussion of topics of the day. Its informality was its charm. But best of all was the originating of an individual.

Christmas and the Birds

It is said that no peasant in Sweden will sit down with his children to Christmas dinner until he has provided food for the birds. The farmers erect piles of grain or straw, to which birds of grain are bound, to provide for birds through the season when vegetation is covered with snow and ice.

First Christmas Carols

Christmas carols originated in the eleventh century, being sung between the scenes of the miracle and mystery plays of the period.

Christmas Trees for Porto Rico

New England helps Porto Rico make it a green Christmas. Christmas trees are among the exports to the little island.

The Eve of Epiphany

The Eve of Epiphany, or Twelfth Night (January 5 to 6), is the children of Rome what Christmas is to us.

Would Not Write Card Verses

SUPERSTITIOUS SUE

When Animals Were Tried by Law

IN OLDEN times animals were often tried by law for certain infractions which constituted crimes in the eyes of the law.

A Jewish law laid down in the Old Testament, Exodus 22:28, reads: "If thou shalt smite a man or a woman that they die, then the ox shall be surely stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be quit." There are other similar allusions in the Old Testament.

In the Middle Ages, from the Tenth to the Twelfth century, were conducted trials for malicious animals, conducted by the church and the state.

An advocate was always assigned to defend the animals. As many as 92 such legal cases were tried in the courts of France from 1210 to 1241.

Domestic animals were tried in the common criminal courts, and their punishment on conviction was death; wild animals of a noxious type, such as rats, cats, catamounts and the like, were tried in the ecclesiastical courts.

In Paris in the year of 1120 the bishop of Leon pronounced an injunction against the catamounts and field mice on account of the ravages they made on the crops.

Spain and Italy were two other countries where the lower animals were held subject to the laws of the state.

A Spanish canonist says that rats when exorcised were ordered to depart for foreign countries; the law forbidding animals would accordingly march down in large bodies to the seacoast and set off by swimming in search of desert islands, where they could live and enjoy themselves without annoyance to man.

It was said that a grackle defiled the head of Ekbert, bishop of Treves, when he was performing mass at the altar of St. Peter's church, at Rome, upon which he held a cross upon the anvil, that if any such bird entered the church it should immediately die.

Wing Lights Aid Aviator

To aid the pilot of an airplane in landing at night on an unlighted field, some British ships are equipped with small searchlights beneath each wing tip, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The beams from the lights converge at a distance under the plane which is known as the pilot's place with the large patch of light formed by the beams crossing each other strikes the surface, the flyer immediately has visual proof of his height from the ground and governs the ship accordingly.
