Why you can drive
The New FORD
so many thousands of miles

Unusual care in manufacturing is reflected in the smooth, reliable performance of the new Ford and its economy and long life.

The New Ford has made an unusual record for reliability and long life. In police service it has been driven 100,000 and 120,000 miles under the severest driving conditions. Leading industrial companies operating large fleets of Fords report "satisfactory economical service" after many months and years of constant use. The value of good materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing is especially apparent after the first 25,000 miles.

Throughout the chassis, you find many reasons for the good performance of the Ford. None is more important than the crankshaft.

The crankshaft is frequently called the heart of the automobile because of the part it plays in transmitting the power developed by the pistons to the flywheel and driveshaft.

The Ford crankshaft has great strength because it is made of carbon manganese steel, it is machined and polished to measurements as fine as one-half of a thousandth part of an inch; the greatest care is taken to make sure that the Ford crankshaft will be in perfect balance in all positions and all speeds. This same care is followed as standard practice in the manufacture of other Ford parts.

You can see, therefore, why the Ford delivers reliable, economical service for so many thousands of miles.
