Facts About the Telephone

Liberia has no interior lines of communication, such as telephones or the telegraph. Messages are sent from town to town by runners or by boat.

A new direct telephone circuit has been placed in service between the cities of Des Moines and Cedar Rapids. It is the seventh circuit now in service between these two cities.

On January 1, 1931, the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania owned and operated 1,232,215 telephones. This is an increase of 64,813 over the number in service on January 1, 1930.

For a number of years the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has had the largest stock list of any corporation in the world. The stockholders are located in every state of the Union, and in seventy foreign countries and United States possessions.

Untold Wealth Awaiting Spread of Man's Empire

The earth's surface has been explored, practically and practically nothing of the interior. The Mediterranean sea washes the corpses of forgotten civilizations, while the submarine seascape exhibits topography that is unmatched on the continent. The west coast of Japan lies a gulch five times deeper than the Grand canyon of Arizona.

Our deepest mines descend about one mile, but to reach a depth where earth heat can be electrified we may have to bore 20 miles. Here is exploration on a titanic scale for engineers, inventors, and adventurers.

Millions of tons of platinum and gold and silver are held in suspension and chemical combination by sea water.

No one looks on the globe without wondering why land should waste. The Sahara, the Australian interior, the American desert, and hundreds of thousands of square miles in South America, China, Borneo, Tibet, Alaska, and the Canadian Arctic are wasted territory. Here are exciting fields for labor. Every desert can be made to flower, every swamp can be drained, every tundra thawed out. Man's empire can expand to every spot where oxygen is available.

Short Shrift Accorded Bible in "Fine Writing"

"Refined" versions of Holy Scripture go back as far as the fourth century of our era, when the pagan emperor Julian forbade Christians to use the classic Greek and Latin writers in their schools on the ground that they had no right to do so, as they had rejected the religious beliefs underlying them, writes a columnist in the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. Some Christians thought that the deprivation was small, but others, notably a certain Apollonius, who before his conversion had been a Soplhist at Byzantium, began to improvise a Christian "literature." The Bible as it stood was not deemed to be a suitable instrument of literary instruction, so the old teacher, along with his son, who in later years became known as the leader of the Apollinarian heresy, set himself to put the Bible into "fine writing." The historical books of the Old Testament were to be turned into epic verse, the Gospels into Platonic dialogues. But the reign of Julian was short, and so was the survival of this "literary Bible."

"Defender of the Faith"

Henry VIII, who was a political rather than a theological rebel against the Roman church, and in his youth was a champion of orthodoxy, wrote a book in defense of the seven sacraments against Luther. In recognition of his services, Pope Leo X granted to him in 1521 the title of "Defender of the Faith," so putting him on an equal footing with the "Catholic" king of Spain and the "Most Christian" king of France. After Henry's break with Rome, Pope Paul III revoked the title; but in 1544 Henry obtained an act of his own parliament conferring the same title upon him. It has been borne ever since by the sovereigns of England, and appears on the coins as FID. DEF. (Fidel Defensor)—"Confidential Edition of the London Daily Mail.

Song Writer's Inspiration

The song, "After the Ball," was written by the Chicago K. Harris. It was at a ball in Cantic that Harris found what he terms the inspiration for his song. He and a Kentucky girl to whom his hostess introduced him danced together all evening. In their group was an engaged couple who quarreled during the dance. The man "took home" another girl. "His former dancee attempted to dispense her unhappiness—seeing this, Harris thought to himself, "Many a heart is aching after the ball." The song was the inception of the well-known song. In one hour's time music and lyric were written.

"Apple Pie Dowdy"

The choice as to the most characteristic historical American dish seems to lie among pie, baked beans, spoonbread, or molasses cake. At a national food show a form of pie was chosen. It was New England apple pie dowdy. This is made in a deep dish. Tart apples are sliced into the dish, sprinkled with maple syrup, cinnamon and nutmeg and a pinch of salt. Pieces of butter are dotted over it, perhaps a little water sprinkled on, and a rich pie crust added. It should be baked slowly to be sure apples are thoroughly cooked.

The Compliment

A nursemaid was leading a little child up and down the garden. "Is it a liddle or a lassle?" asked the gardener.

"A liddle," said the maid.

"Well," said he, "I'm glad o' that, for there's over many women in the world."

"Man," said the other, "did ye no ken that there's are mair sown o' the best crop?"—Christian Register.

Line Forms at Right

A magazine writer says that "any American girl with $20,000 a year in her own right can marry the best there is in Europe." And that isn't all the story—not by any means. Any American girl with that much money can take her pick right here in the United States.—Shreveport Journal.
