Hundreds Attend Funeral Rites For Harley Warner

grave, friends from near and far, made one by a sense of common loss, and sharing with his family the heaviness of their sorrow and the burden of their grief. But we must not yield our minds to our sense of loss, but rather, think of all that he has meant to us, and will mean in years to come through memories now consecrated by grief.

"Out of an abundant vitality he lived his days, putting as much of meaning and achievement in his thirty-seven years as most men are able to do in twice that span. How few, indeed, ever establish themselves so completely in the confidence and so deeply in the affections of so many of their fellows as Harley did. He had his father's power of concentration. His mental processes were swift and accurate. He was discriminating and just, with a fine ethical feeling for what was essentially fair and right. By these he won and kept our confidence and respect. There was a drive to his nature that called always for action, but it never led him to ignore nor to be less sensitive to the finer human values. By his buoyancy of spirit, his charm of manner, and his genuine kindness he won, as did his father, and held all hearts. Younger and older alike were drawn to him, and among those who shall miss him most will be the company of little folk he knew, and into whose world he could enter with such naturalness and interest and understanding.

"So it shall be, as days shall pass and we shall come here from time to time to visit the graves of our departed, our feet shall find their way to this place where now we stand and here in silence we shall offer to the God Who wills that all shall be friends our prayer of thanksgiving for this friend, that he came into our acquaintance, into our fellowship, our affection, our love. And with our memories of him renewed we shall go forth with new heart to shape our day to larger usefulness and to live with greater courage and a fairer hope.

"We have known him after the flesh but we shall know him now no more. All that was mortal of him we now give back to the earth from whence it came. We have made his grave hard by the bed where the dust of his father lies. But a newness of life is theirs far beyond our understanding. And we feel still the touch of their spirits upon our own, full of healing and of strength. Our hearts are not left comfortless. Vaster meanings to this our earthly pilgrimage break upon us, with intimations of lands afar, and stilling the tumult of our grief, we hear a voice from out the distance whispering, "All is well."

"What is excellent As God lives is permanent. House and tenant go to ground. Lost in God in Godhood found." Among the floral tributes, many of them elaborate and costly, none meant more than one simple little bouquet. It had been fashioned by little girls of the neighborhood, playmates of Mr. Warner's daughter Dorothy, out of blossoms that grew in the gardens of their homes, and was brought by them as their own token of their sorrow.

Letter To The Editor

City Finances

To the Editor: Some time ago I read in the columns of the Enterprise a letter calling the attention of the City Commission to the provision in the Charter requiring the publication of an annual statement of the finances of the City. So far as I recall this has not been done for a number of years.

In the past the average citizen has been somewhat careless with respect to the privileges and duties of citizenship, but with the coming of stringent times a great many are awakening and turning a critical eye on matters that affect their welfare.

No one doubts that those entrusted with municipal affairs apply themselves to the task with sincere regard for the best interests of the community as a whole.

However, the framers of the City Charter, with wisdom and foresight, made provisions to overcome the laxity of citizens by adopting therein Chapter 18, Sections 26 and 27, which read as follows:

Section 26. "Immediately upon the close of the fiscal year the City Commission shall audit and settle the accounts of the City Treasurer and other officers of the City, and the accounts also so far as practicable, or persons having claims against the City, or accounts with it not previously audited; and shall make a statement in detail of the receipts and expenditures of the corporation during the preceding year, which statement shall distinctly show the amount of all taxes raised for each fund, the amount collected on each and the amount borrowed, and upon what time and terms and for what purpose; also the items and amounts received from all sources during the year, and the expenses thereof, classifying the expenditures for each purpose separately. Said statement shall also show the amount and items of all indebtedness outstanding against the City; and to whom payable, and upon what rate of interest; the amount of salary or compensation paid or payable to each officer of the City for the year, and such other information as shall be necessary to a full understanding of all the financial concerns of the City."

Section 27. "The statement required by the City Charter, shall be filed up in the office of the City Clerk, and copy thereof published in a newspaper published in the City."

It may be well to note that the terms of these sections are mandatory and that the officials have no recourse but to comply therewith. Any carelessness or neglect on their part to furnish such information as required by law for the enlightenment of the citizen cannot be viewed lightly. This tendency is one of our gravest problems today.

Chief Of Police Makes Summary

More Than $550 In Fines Collected From Law Violators In Farmington

One hundred and twenty-four arrests have been made in the city of Farmington since January 1, 1931, it was reported by Lee E. Doyle, chief of police, this week. These arrests are divided into six classes headed by violations of city traffic ordinances, followed by violations of the State Motor Vehicle laws, misdemeanors, misdemeanors under city ordinances, felonies under State law, and special investigations.

A total of seven years and nine months in probation has been meted out by the Farmington Justice court with a total payment of fines coming to $553.

Violators of city traffic ordinances head the list. A total of 63 arrests have been recorded with fines totalling $407.10. No probationary sentences were imposed.

Violations under the State Motor Vehicle laws with charges including reckless driving, driving without a chauffeur's license, driving without a Michigan Public Utilities Commission permit, faulty lights, and speeding brought a total of 46 arrests with fines amounting to $81.05 and a total of 30 months probation.

Only two have been arrested on charges coming under State misdemeanors. Violators were given a total of 30 days in the county jail and three months probation.

Five arrests were made of violators of city ordinances for misdemeanors which brought fines totalling $65.

A total of five years probation was given the two arrested for State felonies, which included a charge of forgery and one of an automobile.

Special investigation brought about six arrests, three for larceny by trick, but no fines or sentences were imposed.

VICTOR PHELPS ARRAIGNED ON NON-SUPPORT CHARGE

Victor Phelps, Farmington township, brought into Judge John J. Schulte's court on a charge of non-support, has had his examination continued indefinitely, meanwhile the court has decreed that he pay $12 a week for the support of his wife and three children under 16 years of age.

When first arraigned, he pleaded not guilty and demanded an examination.

Board Debating Bus Insurance For School

saddled upon them a large expense for medical care or other costs, which they could not pay, whereas insurance might guard against the circumstances.

Trustee Lloyd Glenn expressed the opinion that "if we, by factoring the entire district $79, can insure the children in the school bus for $5,000 to $50,000, I believe it would be a good stroke of business."

The Board deferred action on the problem, with the view of studying more closely the policies offered and circumstances under which insurance would be paid.

STATE OF MICHIGAN CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF OAKLAND, IN CHANCERY.

Rudolph E. Reichert, State Banking Commissioner, Plaintiff, vs.

Farmington State Savings Bank, a Michigan Banking Corporation, Defendant.

No. 16,735

At a session of said Court held at the Court House in the City of Pontiac in said County, this 6th day of August, A. D. 1931.

Present: Honorable Frank L. Covert, Circuit Judge.

The Petition of Howard C. Knickerbocker, Receiver of Farmington State Savings Bank, defendant in the above cause, having been brought on to be heard before this Court, praying for the Order of this Court giving all persons who may have claims against said Farmington State Savings Bank an opportunity to present their respective claims to said Receiver, and make legal proof thereof.

On motion of E. L. Phillips, Attorney for Receiver, IT IS ORDERED, that all persons who may have claims against said Farmington State Savings Bank, present the same to Howard C. Knickerbocker, Receiver, within ninety days from this date, and the said Receiver is hereby authorized to prepare suitable blanks for proofs of claims and to mail a copy of this notice with said form for proof of claim to each of the creditors of said Bank.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that a copy of the within Order be published once each week for twelve successive weeks in the Farmington Enterprise, a Newspaper printed, published and circulated in the County of Oakland, State of Michigan.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that in default of any creditor filing proof of claim within ninety days from the date hereof, said Receiver shall proceed with the distribution of the assets without reference to claims not filed and proven when dividends are paid or distribution of assets is made.

Frank L. Covert, Circuit Judge.

Burton P. Daugherty, Clerk.

Howard C. Knickerbocker, Receiver Farmington State Savings Bank, Farmington, Michigan.

Dated: August 6th, 1931.
