IMPROVEMENT INDICATED IN CORPORATION DIVISION

Lansing, Nov. 11.—Another sign of improving business conditions was noted during the past month by the corporation division of the department of state. One of the best means the state has of gauging economic conditions, is through the number of new companies which seek articles of incorporation.

During the month of October, requests were received by the corporation division for 8,000 application blanks. This is taken to mean that many new companies sensing improved conditions are preparing to be ready for prosperous times.

BUSINESS GIRL'S CODE IS MODERN DECALOGUE

She Sets "Ten Commandments" to Live Up to on the Job

What sort of things do business people tuck under the glass tops of their desks, where they will be constantly in sight during working hours?

An enterprising reporter for the Farmington Enterprise determined to find out. The answer was: As many different kinds of things as there are people—and all of them interesting. Pictures of wives, sweethearts, children, pets; photographs of vacation or travel scenes; mottos and quotations of encouragement and inspiration.

One young lady, employed in a telephone engineering office, confronts herself, through her glass desktop, with the following:

"A Business Woman's Ten Commandments:

"1. Thou shalt be punctual at thy place of business.
"2. Thou shalt arise from thy bed in ample time to make thy toilet and apply thy completion aids before leaving thy domicile. Then thou shalt not need to spend the first half hour of every day at the office in conference with thy mirror and thy compact.

"3. Thou shalt discourage private telephone calls during business hours.

"4. Thou shalt refrain from reading or writing thy love letters at thy desk, while the boss waits and wonders at thy slowness in getting out that list for him.

"5. Thou shalt not waste expensive office supplies merely because they are not paid for from thy purse.

"6. Thou shalt not be arrogant and overbearing to the office boy, but treat the young lad as though he were a real human being, as indeed he is.

"7. Thou shalt not prance out to the wash room every seventy minutes and stay twenty minutes to gossip with thy friends from other offices on the same floor.

"8. Thou shalt not 'pass the buck' when something goes wrong, due to thy carelessness, but own up like a little lady and be more careful next time.

"9. Thou shalt make it the prime rule of thy business life never to make the same mistake twice.

"10. Thou shalt be loyal to thy employer and to his interests so long as thou shalt receive thy salary from his hand regularly."

DETROIT BANKER SAYS CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVING

Tells Members Of Exchange
Club That Upswing In Business Seen

Definite improvement in the business outlook around Detroit, indicating that conditions will be on the upswing from now on, was reported to members of Farmington Exchange Club Wednesday noon by William W. Slogum of Farmington, cashier of the United Savings Bank in Detroit.

Mr. Slogum, called on for an impromptu talk, cited three factors as having evidently caused the marked increase in confidence in this section and throughout the country. The sharp rise in grain prices, the steady effect of British elections, and establishment of the National Credit Corporation have each had a strong psychological result, according to Mr. Slogum. Retail stores report more active buying, decreases in deposits of banks have stopped and instead one recent report revealed a marked increase in deposits. Most important of all, he indicated was the undercurrent of returning confidence which appears to be general with the public as well as among business-men and in financial circles.

Members Of DeMolay Guests At Plymouth

An enjoyable evening was spent at the home of H. Segnitz at Plymouth Wednesday where several members of the DeMolay of Farmington were guests. Refreshments were served and games and cards enjoyed during the evening.

Detroit Seeks Arrest In Chief's Dooryard

the arresting when he was ready to do it and not when representatives of the Detroit firm wanted it done.

Seeing that the Chief was set in his ways and that an immediate arrest was unlikely, the two departed, only to return a short while later, this time fortified with legal counsel.

A brief verbal skirmish on a street corner was followed by one still more spirited in the offices of John J. Schulte, justice of the peace, where the contesting company's counsel intimated that "they would pay $25 for a year's license to peddle in Farmington."

The particular ordinance which would prevent the Detroit company from peddling was passed in 1895 by the village council. It was written by the late Gov. Fred M. Warner and originally stated that a fee of $2 per day be charged peddlers who sought to sell their wares in Farmington. In 1923 it was amended to provide for a yearly fee of $200, which the Detroit firm has admitted it is trying to bring to a test in court and have over-ruled if possible.

To Await Week-End

At the termination of a "conference" in Judge Schulte's office there were a few points that were made clear to the company representatives. Chief Doyle enlightened them on the matter of arrest by pledging himself to oblige them at an early date if the practice of peddling in Farmington without proper authority was continued, preferably early some Saturday afternoon when justice and circuit courts in the County are closed for the week end and any unfortunate individual who may become entangled in the toils of the law will by necessity, spend at least 48 hours awaiting bail.

City officials were unanimous in the opinion that the ordinance is valid and that it should be enforced. Chief Doyle is equally eager to enforce it but prefers not to have interested parties come to his own door step and deliberately ask for an arrest. He says that he is perfectly willing to go after his man if circumstances warrant.

It has been intimated that if a certain truck containing a certain driver should attempt to sell merchandise on the streets of Farmington the latter part of the week, the "man" may be "obliged."

"Good Enough" IS NEVER Good Enough

"Good Enough" is a creed which never creeps into the working philosophy of the Farmington Enterprise Job Printing Department. On the contrary, we aim to do every job, small as well as large, as though the entire reputation of our business depended upon it.

The satisfaction of many old customers and an ever-widening circle of new ones rests upon this sound philosophy of service.
