

Catholic Schools Freeze Enrollment

Cardinal John F. Dearden has asked Catholic schools in the Archdiocese of Detroit to freeze their enrollments.

This follows an increase in the number of inquiries about enrollment in Catholic schools since Judge Stephen Roth ordered plans to be submitted to him for the integration of metropolitan area schools through bussing.

IN A MEMORANDUM presented to all pastors and school principals, the Rev. Thomas J. McNulty, director of the department of Christian education, stated, "The cardinal has asked that all schools freeze their enrollments insofar as accepting any students from outside the parish."

"Even in the case of application to the school from people in the parish, careful examination should be made of some parents' sudden decision to enroll their child in a Catholic school."

The memo further stated that for a Catholic school to become a refuge for parents who "wish to avoid the social application of the Gospel message would be a contradiction of the school's right to exist and to teach."

AT THE SAME TIME, the memo suggested that this would be a good time for each school to examine its responsibilities towards teaching poor and disadvantaged children.

The memorandum stated that requests for information about enrollments have increased since the bussing controversy arose.

The program will also be sponsored by the Alar Rosary Society. There is no admission charge.

Religion Update

Rev. Lester Kinsolving's

"Let any church send us 30 laymen for a weekend and we will send back 29 awakened revolutionaries," says the Rev. Joseph Matthews, leader of Chicago's increasingly famed Ecumenical Institute.

"I am a revolutionary," explains Matthews, a former Texas theological seminary professor and brother of Methodist Bishop James Matthews of Boston, one of the leaders of the current drive to merge 12 major denominations (COCU).

"The Communist Party would give its right arm for access to a cigar box with a staple in it at every crossroad and village where people meet once a week. A guy who overlooks that setup as an operation doesn't know what it means to be a real revolutionary. These are the social dynamics of Stalin, and it seems to me that they are just tremendous."

THE CHARISMATIC Rev. Matthews, an elderly man with a pencil mustache and long white hair, has by no means overlooked the church "setup." His institute, established by the World Council of Churches in 1964, now has an annual budget of $1.5 million; a headquarters staff of 240 adults who live under vows of poverty and obedience; organized groups of clergy and laity ("caders") in all 50 states, all provinces of Canada and 22 other countries; the endorsement and sponsorship of the Greater Chicago Church Federation; and some 16,000 people per annum who undergo the institute's training program.

Not all who have undergone the institute's programs have been enthusiastic or felt revitalized. The Rev. Graham Hutchins, a pastor and college professor in Wenatchee, Wash., has written of his experience at the institute as follows:

"An ecclesiastical totalitarianism which, under the guise of promoting ecumenicity and renewal, fosters revolution... Discussions at the institute are so manipulated and theological differences so exploited, that all belief is reduced to an illusion and subordinated to the task of revolution."

"One device they use is foul language - which, after a while, strips away all piety and inhibition and deceives one into thinking he has really discovered the truth about himself and the relativism of any moral absolute."

"Both the divinity of Christ and his humanity are stripped away and reduced to what they call 'The Christ-Event.' There is also the emphasis that this life is all that matters. There is no mention of Dietrich Bonhoeffer's 'religionless Christianity' and come up with a Christianity-less religion. This is not renewed Christianity; but a left moral rearward march which is as ridiculous as the old right version. There results a fanatic ecclesiastical Bolshevism that is even more dangerous than the real thing because it comes under the guise of church renewal and ecumenicity."

"They maintain that the Church is in danger of dying a slow death from self-strangulation so therefore it must thrust itself into history... by means of ruthless power politics... One of the tactics used is the infiltration of present church structures... Churchmen in this country are used to fighting right wing political extremism. What we have not been on our guard for is the introduction of a left wing political type revolution... Just because there are reactionaries in our country who would pay their respects to a Hitler, is no reason for the Church to adopt the policies of a Stalin in opposition."

AT THE INSTITUTE'S annual headquarters in one of this city's black ghettos, the communal lives who serve as staff were working diligently and singing modern church hymns (rather feverishly) as this writer interviewed an assistant to Rev. Matthews, a handsome and congenial articulate young man named Philip Towley.

Towley appeared almost totally unfazed by Rev. Hutchins' strong critique, dismissing it rather blithely as "a gross misunderstanding."

But later in the interview he came to remark: "Why be concerned about religion? Everybody's got his religion. Marxism is a religion... We are giving our lives to the Church."

Holy Trinity To Begin Campaign

Holy Trinity Lutheran Church is undertaking a building campaign which will more than double its present physical facilities at 39020 Five Mile, Livonia.

The building committee, headed by William Ehlich, has already done preliminary work which will help raise $150,000 in pledges towards the $300,000 structure.

Holy Trinity began as a mission church of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in November 1961. At first, the services were held in Lincoln Elementary School. The present structure was built in 1964.

Membership has increased rapidly in recent years and it now numbers 550 communicant members.

The church is staffed by the Rev. Fred Baker, who was installed three years ago, and Deaconess Diana Weiringer, who was installed two months ago.

Missionary CARE Donations To Africa Suggested As Gifts

The Rev. Paul Wilson, missionary of the Wesleyan Church to South Africa, will speak at 11 a.m., Sunday, Nov. 7, in Livonia Wesleyan Church, 14560 Merriman.

Rev. Wilson will talk about the mission field in which he serves and show slides. He will also have a display of curios.

He is now serving among the white people who speak both English and Afrikaans. He first pastored a church in a suburb of Johannesburg and later he was at Vryheid in Natal.

The Wesleyan Church has missionary work in 38 foreign countries. Some 240 missionaries and 1,325 national pastors and evangelists serve the church in these countries.

Christmas shoppers are being urged to consider a gift to CARE in the names of those friends who are hard-to-please and have everything.

Under the program, donors send a check to CARE to deliver food to a needy family overseas, or a check to MEDICO, a service of CARE, to bring the benefits of modern medical aid to many around the world who have never had it before.

The donor will then receive attractive CARE or MEDICO cards explaining what has been done. The donor signs them and forwards them to his friends.

Holiday gift list forms are available at CARE, Inc., 500 Grissold Building, 500 Grissold, Detroit, 48226.

High on the list of persons CARE hopes to help this year are the more than 8 million Pakistanis in India.

CARE is also seeking regular donations for its work in this area. They should be mailed to Emergency Relief Fund-West Bengal, CARE, 500 Grissold, 2406 Guardian Building, Detroit, 48226.

CARE's resident staff in India, which has been operating since 1950, began to provide food aid as soon as the influx of refugees started in early April. As the crisis mounted, help was steadily increased, especially in the state of West Bengal where the majority of East Pakistan refugees are concentrated.

The CARE staff reports that the time from now to mid-December is critical. Adequate supplies must be in the camps before the onslaught of cold weather brings even greater health hazards to the refugees.
