Sigrid Oengin To Sing

At Ann Arbor Feb. 16.

From typewriter desk to the opera stage is the transition accomplished by Sigrid Oengin, today the foremost contralto of our concert and operatic stage, who will sing in the Choral Union Series in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, February 16, (instead of the 15th as first announced).

But simple as the fact may appear, this transition was not effected at a single bound. Months of study were necessary, and many times discouragement almost vanquished her; but when she seemed to have touched the very depths of despair, something wonderful happened to give her renewed courage.

In 1913, she made her first appearance in a recital in Berlin. Max von Schillings, the director of the Berlin Opera, heard her and it was due to his counsel that she was persuaded to study for opera.

The Philadelphia Orchestra introduced Mme. Oengin to this country in one of its New York seasons in the fall of 1922.

Her talents have easily been recognized by the season, and she has been booked for a full tour, although she had arrived on our shores practically unknown save for the few who had heard her abroad.

TO CULL POULTRY

A poultry culling demonstration will be conducted by K. D. Bailey, County Agricultural Agent at the farm of E. N. Bogue, 2 1/2 miles west of Novi near Grand River at 1:00 p. m. Tuesday. Poultrymen are invited to attend.

TO DRENCH SHEEP

A sheep drenching demonstration for the control of internal parasites will be made at the farm of Jay Tidwell, 7 miles East of Holly on M-37 at 1:00 p. m. Saturday. Interested sheep men are invited to attend.

Two members of the faculty from Ohio State University, staff members from Michigan State, and operators of greenhouses will act as instructors. The Ohio State men are I. C. Hofman and H. D. Brown.

DEBTS OF NATION'S

DEBT TO WIFE OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Rep. Dondero Holds Large Audience In Address On The Emancipator

Nearly a hundred men and women of Farmington and vicinity enjoy a new understanding and appreciation of Abraham Lincoln as a result of their attendance Tuesday evening at the dinner in Farmington Methodist Church, at which Rep. George A. Dondero of the 17th District spoke on the Great Emancipator. But their new understanding extends not only to the life of Lincoln, but there was revealed to them too an entirely new and sympathetic picture of Mary Todd Lincoln, the part she played and the great debt America owes to her for the saving of the Nation under Lincoln's guidance.

For a knowledge of the well-worn path of Lincoln knowledge that is part of every schoolboy's history, Mr. Dondero took his audience into the more personal phases of Lincoln's life and career, telling of things that the speaker had gathered in his extensive personal studies, material and recollections gleaned from relatives and friends of the martyred President. He revealed that had it not been for Mary Todd Lincoln, her husband would in every probability never have become president, to guide the Nation through its most critical years. He revealed what few know even today, that every member of her family held to the Southern cause, and four of her brothers died in battle as Confederate soldiers, yet Mary Todd Lincoln remained loyal to her husband and stood staunchly by him through the four trying years in the White House, and helped to make his struggle successful.

Mr. Dondero came to Farmington as the guest of Floyd Nichols, the dinner having been sponsored by the Exchange Club.
