W. ALLEN NELSON
In presenting my name as a candidate for Justice of the Peace to fill vacancy, I realize that in these unsettled and precarious times there is need for men of principle and unfettered minds in all phases of public life. If elected, I shall endeavor to perform the functions of the office capably and conscientiously.

There are to be two justices elected April 3rd. One for the full term of four years and one to fill the vacancy in the term expiring in April 1935, commonly called the short term. The latter is the term for which I am a candidate. A word to your friends and neighbors in support of my candidacy will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
W. ALLEN NELSON.

IT NEED NOT BE BETTER
But if it be just as good, AN OCCASIONAL CHANGE is desirable. For City Clerk, Mary Johnson. Your support will be appreciated.

The Iron Horse' Makes

Many Run—To See Him

The great wooden horse of Troy that won a famous battle created no more excitement proportionally than has Farmington's "iron horse," which stands gazing westward from a window of Farmington Hardware Co. It has been standing for days, unmoving and apparently unfatigued.

The horse was born and grew to full stature within a couple of hours a few days ago. It came into being as a result of the nationwide return to popularity of horses for the farm. Wishing to display a fine new harness, Emory Hutton studied the matter and finally hit on the idea. The horse's "innards" consists of a trio of nail kegs, his legs are strips of lumber hurriedly procured from the local lumber-yard, and his body is composed of stovepipe.

But the prize attraction of all is the head. That bothered for a bit, but Mr. Hutton whipped the problem. And for the first time in history a creature appeared on earth with a head made out of three elbows.

The iron horse is still attracting a good deal of attention. In its first day of existence it brought many inquiries as to "how much it that harness?" Mr. Hutton said. The horse is not for sale.
