Old Time Pool Room Is Moved Into New Store

The Grand River Avenue store which has housed a pool room for thirty-five years is vacant today, just as it was in 1898 when James Hogle closed his drug store there.

William Pangborn, who has been the owner of the pool room for the last few years, sold out last week to L. C. Thayer and Louis Shroeder. The equipment has been moved to the place occupied formerly by the Frink Variety store, and the new pool room is ready to begin operations.

Plan Brilliant Concerts For U. Of M. Festival

A galaxy of opera stars will be conspicuous at the Fortieth Annual Ann Arbor May Festival, consisting of six concerts, which will take place May 17, 18, 19, and 20, in Hill Auditorium. Nina Koshetz, Grete Stueckgold, Leonora Corona, Rose Bampton, all distinguished prima donnas; with Frederick Jagel, tenor; John Charles Thomas, baritone; Chase Baromeo, bass; will participate in the great choral works and miscellaneous operatic programs. Heifetz, world renowned violinist, with Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, pianists, and Palmer Christian, organist, will represent the instrumentalists.

Five renowed conductors will preside over the Chicago Symphon Orchestra, The University Choral Union, and the Young People's Chorus and in the artist night programs, including Earl V. Moore, Musical Director; Frederick Stock, Orchestral Conductor; Eric DeLamarter, Assistant Conductor; Howard Hanson, Guest Conductor; and Juva Higbee, Young People's Conductor.

Three outstanding choral works will be heard. "Merry Mount," a new opera by Howard Hanson, will receive its world first appearance by special permission of the Metropolitan Opera Association. This opera depicts early New England life and portrays many characteristic scenes and incidents from the times of the early Puritans. It abounds in beautiful melodious passages for the chorus and outstanding roles for the soloists.

35 HELD IN BANK LOSS OF $70,000 AT WALLED LAKE

28 Liable For $70,000 Each, Including 4 Who Sold 5 Years Before Closing

Thirty-five stockholders are held individually responsible for the loss of $70,000 in the defunct Peoples Bank of Walled Lake, including four of Farmington whose stock was sold more than five years before the bank closed in September, 1930, under a decision in Circuit Court at Pontiac. Under the decree, handed down by Circuit Judge Glenn C. Gillespie, 28 of the 35 are held individually for the entire amount of loss, provided it cannot be collected from others. The remaining seven are liable in amounts varying from $47,985 down to $4,784.58.

The decree is another event in the long series which has followed the closing of the bank after the suicide of the cashier, Clarence A. Chafy. There are reports that an appeal from the decree may be taken to the Supreme Court, but this is viewed unlikely, due to the cost.

A Rare Case

The holding of each stockholder liable for the full amount is unusual, and occurs because the bank was a private one, and not a State bank. In the latter case each stockholder would be liable only for an amount equal to the par value of his stock.

The holding liable for the full $70,000 of three men and the estate of another who has died, comes about by a queer combination of events, neglect, and legal technicalities. Through these complications, James L. Hogle, Clarence Bicking, Benjamin E. Storms and the Estate of Chares H. Ely of Farmington are held to account for the entire losses in the operation of the bank long after they had ceased to have any financial interest or voice in management. Reports of a possible appeal are based to a large extent on this ruling.

The simple failure of the former cashier to record at Pontiac the transfer of stock from the Farmington men in 1925 holds them liable under the verdict. They sold out in that year, endorsing the certificates and turning them over to the cashier, with the understanding that the transfers would be recorded, but this was never done. Judge Gillespie, referring to a statute on the matter, held them still liable as stockholders.

In the case of seven stockholders not held to full liability, Judge Gillespie held that their ownership of stock was such as to place them in a different category, and they are held in smaller amounts In explanation of the holding of the stockholders in the private bank, it is stated that each is held to the entire amount, provided some cannot be collected from others; if something can be collected from other stockholders, then the liability is reduced accordingly.

Those held for the full amount of loss, $70,000 are: Benjamin E. Storms, Estate of Charles H. Ely, James L. Hogle, C. G. Parmalee, Estate of Clarence A. Chafy, Minnie Chapman, Fred E. Ward, Fred A. Parmenter, Estate of Eva C. Parmenter, William Hoyt, Frances Hoyt, Herbert G. Roach, Estate of F. A. Brass, Montague Webber, Clarence W. Bicking, Marley S. Bachelor, Estate of G. H. Vansickle, Lena Coe, Estate of Eugene Coe, Estate of Clark Jones, Charles W. Lare, John Dickie, Ethel Parmalee, Bertha J. Chafy, Cora M. Ward, Jennie Coe, Maynard G. Post, Carrie Post.

The remaining seven, held for smaller sums, are:

Glenn Buffmyer	$27,462.00
Ira S. Carnes	27,462.00
Albert Richardson	33,351.00
Estate of Frances Richardson	34,275.00
Estate of Irena Jones	34,275.00
Mittie E. Bachelor	47,985.00
John Crooks	4,784.58

BIBLE SCHOOL GAIN OF 50% IS FEATURE IN BAPTIST REPORT

Increase Of 52 In Membership Is Shown In Annual Meeting; 39 Baptized

The Annual meeting of the Farmington Baptist Church was held Wednesday evening, May 3 with an exceptionally large attendance. The reports from every department indicated that the year just closed was one of the best in its more than a century of activity as a church.

The Bible school attendance was 181, as compared with 123 the previous year. The final tabulation of the membership showed an increase during the year of 52, 30 of whom came by baptism. The total number baptized during the year was 58, several of these being from Novi Church under Pastor Palmer.

The following newly elected officers are to serve for three years: deacons, E. P. Bates, L. W. Bury; deaconesses, Mrs. Orville Taggart, Mrs. Emma Weston; trustees, Fred Lahr and Ellis Dickerson. Those re-elected for one year are: clerk, Miss Inez Weston; financial secretary, Dan Smith; current fund treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Kellogg; Bible school general superintendent, L. W. Bury; pianist, Miss Alma Weston. The following newly elected officers are also for one year: benevolent treasurer, Fred Ferris; head usher, Chas Rousseaux.

New advisory board will meet next Monday night to formulate plans and program for the summer and fall work.

After the business session a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Letter From Dairy On Milk Situation

A letter addressed to the City Commission by Farmington Dairy on the milk distribution situation in Farmington has attracted public interest, and for information of those interested, the letter is printed herewith:

April 12, 1933.

Honorable Mayor and City Commissioners;
Farmington, Michigan.
Gentlemen:

Your attention is called to the fact that considerable milk is sold in city of Farmington which does not comply with city ordinance No. C-12-30 governing sale of milk. This ordinance was passed in order to protect the health of this community and our plant was so arranged as to comply with the regulations called for by the ordinance. This, of course, entailed considerable outlay of capital as evidenced by tax assessment of $10,500.00. In addition, in order to maintain proper sanitary conditions we use an average of $12.00 worth of water every month. We endeavor to maintain our plant in finest of condition at all times in compliance with local as well as state laws. All workers employed are local Farmington residents and our monthly payroll amounts to $800.00.

It is apparent that we have to meet considerable expense to comply with milk ordinance, and we therefore respectfully request your honorable body that the ordinance governing sale of milk be either rigidly enforced or entirely repealed.

This request is not made by us in order to eliminate fair competition, as we always are able to meet fair and lawful competition, but it is not our intent to meet competition by endangering the health of the community.

Respectfully submitted
FARMINGTON DAIRY
