An Editor's Soliloquy

The watchful eye of an editor 'way out' in North Dakota, the Carson Press, catches this one from an Exchange—author unknown:

A SOLILOQUY

"Consider the editor! A child is born unto the wife of a citizen in the town. The physician gets 35 plunks. The editor writeth a stick and a half and telleth the multitude that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yea, he lieth even as a Centurion, and the proud father giveth him a Cremo.

"Behold, the young one groweth up and graduateth. And the editor putteth into his paper a swell notice. He telleth the wisdom of the young woman and her exceeding comeliness. Like unto the Rose of Sharon is she and her gown played up to beat the band. And the dressmaker getteth two score and four cart-wheels. And the editor getteth a note of thanks from the sweet girl graduate.

"And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor then throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a picture postal card that costeth six for a jittney.

"Behold, she returneth and the youth of town falleth down and worship. She picketh one, and lo, she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of the promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding and lo, the ads are printed in a far away city.

"Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister getteth ten bones. The groom standeth the editor off for twelve months' subscription.

"All flesh is grass and in time the wife is gathered unto the soil. The minister getteth his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a eulogy of poetry and a card of thanks, and he forgetteth to read proof on the head and the darning thing cometh out, 'Gone to Her Last Roasting Place.'

"And all who are 'akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And pulleth out their ads and cancel their subscriptions, and they bring the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations."

From Golf Links To Gardens

There is a striking phenomenon apparent in the life of this section this Spring. It is the making of gardens for growing things—and everyone seems to be doing it. It's in the very air. People, but recently "city folks," many of whom have never planted a row of seed or handled a hoe, have had good-sized plots ploughed up and fitted, ready for planting. A few years ago few of them would have dreamed of growing their own vegetables.

Nor is it merely the Depression, although that is unquestionably the biggest factor. Besides new hope in these last few months there has developed a new attitude of mind, in this fourth year of the Great Toboggan-Slide. Through the first and second and third years of it, there hung on a hope that some bright morning we would awake and find it all over, with 1928 back again amongst us. But a double process has been going on. During the past year the conviction has carried home that although we may actually have started uphill, it's going to be a long, slow haul, and not a sudden burst over the top. While this conviction was taking hold, from about a year ago until this spring, hopelessness grew. We were in it, and nothing could be done to help ourselves—what was the use trying? But with the new and sudden hope that came forth three months ago, there has appeared another development of more active nature. Men and women have come to feel that perhaps there is a way out after all and maybe there is some use in every one of us trying. So they are literally "digging in," in numbers and to an extent never witnessed before, and this very thing that they have taken courage to do will in turn, when they see the results of their work, give them still more courage and hope.

But beyond the economic factor, there is another, the apparent enjoyment and lightness of spirit with which many have plunged into the gardening-work. Large numbers seem to be regarding it as fun and play, which gardening can be. Are we to believe that golf is at last losing followers to the gardens? Has the fad worn off? One remembers that that great lover of all nature and growing things, Dr. H. Addis Leeson who used to be in Farmington, brought to the first Flower Show (which he did so much to make successful), a wheelbarrow full to the brim with prize fruits and vegetables, on top of which he placed a sign: "The Pastor's Golf Score." Our genial former minister's face might expand in its widest smile were he to drop in for a visit this year and look about him. He might find that the cry of "fore" which use to mean "look out for the golf ball," is now exultant exclamation of the new gardener who has found on one of his vines actual, real, honest-to-goodness tomatoes numbering four, that putting on the green has given way to putting among the greens, and that ploughing with golf-club amid the bunkers has given way to pulling weeds among the hills of beans.

53 More Jobless?

Graduation of the largest class in the history of Farmington High School would ordinarily be an occasion for much reflecting with pride, upon the development of education in the community. Today, however, it brings a different kind of reaction—raises a question. Does the issuance of diplomas mean that just that many more boys and girls will be futilely seeking work during the coming year, and the year after that?

It has meant that in the past. It cannot continue thus much farther into the future. Our social organism will not be able to withstand such a condition.

IN MEMORY OF DR. H. E. BOICE

Meditations

I stood for a moment just looking—thinking—A chill ran down my back; a huge lump rose high in my throat; my limbs quivered; and my eyes became blurred. Before me lay the earthly yoke of one whom we have long known as 'Doc'—a doctor not of medicine alone, but of life and everything that represents.

A pleasant word for all whom he contacted; a bit of assistance for those who were in need; kindly advice whenever it was requested—yea, a heart of pure gold from which all could draw. No sacrifice was too great to make; no nobler man has ever walked the ways of life.

Happy, helpful, and contented in life, Glorious and peaceful in death. Death—the beauty of life: reborn to the world anew in the wonders of memory.

Still helping, still guiding, still smiling—our friend, dear old 'Doc'.

Death—why do'st thou rap at our door?
Death—what hast thou in store?
'Tis the will of fate that brings you here;
'Tis the wish of God to be reckoned there.

Oh Death—the beauty of life!
Oh Death—which endeth earthly strife!
You call to us when our work is done,
To carry us on to the setting sun.

Onward, onward we go—forever more,
A Soul of God's Eternal World.

J. C. FRAZER.
