'BACK TAXES FOR HALF' PLAN O. K'D BY SCHOOL BOARD

While Farmington City officials have yet to take action, indications are that a plan may soon be in operation in this community whereby property-owners who pay their delinquent taxes at possibly 50 cents on the dollar. The plan, which involves purchase of Farmington bonds in the present low market, received its first official backing at the September meeting of the Board of Education, when authorization was given by the Board.

The company furthering the idea, Cutler, Moeller and Hubble of Detroit, who were given sanction to proceed, will await similar action by the City before going ahead. The idea was laid before the City Commission at its meeting two weeks ago, but action was deferred.

Under the plan, the company goes into tax records and ascertainment of what properties are delinquent. It then contacts the owners and learns if they could pay, providing the back-taxes were made but a fraction of the amount due. For instance, one-half. Upon finding a sufficient number who could pay on this basis, the company goes into the market and purchases bonds of the governing unit in the amount required. As bonds can now be bought far below par, a great saving is possible. The company pays the bonds and after the taxpayers pay in their respective amounts, they receive tax-receipts in full. The bond is cancelled, relieving the governing unit of the burden it has been carrying. Both taxpayers and the governing unit benefit. The company is permitted a fixed rate for its work, not to exceed 10 per cent. The rate charged is usually eight per cent.

Farmington School District No. 5 now has $22,000 in bonds now in default, as to principal. Of this $5,000 was defaulted last year, and $17,000 in March of this year.

Clarence Vliet, former superintendent of schools in Birmingham, represented the company at the Board meeting and outlined the plan.

'OLD ORDER DEAD' SPEAKER ADVISES NRA ASSEMBLY

"The old order is a failure and offers us no hope. The new order is worth trying and at least it holds some promise. That's why it is worth while to support the NRA."

"We are in the midst of a revolution, as great an economic revolution as has ever taken place since this country began. Whether you realize it or not, the revolution is here, though there is no violence. Vast changes are taking place. And it is one of the glorious things about the American people that revolutions of this kind can and do take place and are accomplished almost before they realize what has occurred."

"Will the NRA bring the minimum over night? No. Will it work smoothly? No. Will there be difficulties? Yes. Will there be injustices? Yes. But I have faith that the American people will correct them."

"Take away the NRA and what have you that holds the slightest hope? Nothing whatever. And after what we have gone through the last four years, we ought to be willing to give any plan that gives us any promise at all our full faith and support. If we will all get together and support it, we have a chance to pull our country through by the NRA."

Thus James H. Lynch, fiery orator and for several decades one of Oakland County's outstanding figures, put before a gathering of 100 Monday night in M. E. Community Hall his conception of the movement in which the country is engaged.

"Richer and Poorer"

Dismissing any notion that the NRA is perfect, Mr. Lynch described it as the one organized effort that has been instituted to combat the tendency going on, he said, for decades past, whereby "the rich have been becoming richer and the poor poorer."

"This tendency has increasingly developed," he said, "until the limit has been reached and we can no longer continue that way. Thus the NRA and the necessity for supporting it."

The speaker suggested that those who would criticize and find defects in the NRA program recall their own follies of recent years and withhold their criticisms. He declared that "during the recent boom period, the whole of southeastern Michigan might have been enclosed and set aside as an insane asylum, considering the way we were acting—buying farms for a thousand dollars an acre with the idea of selling them for two thousand to another fellow who would sell them for three thousand to another fellow, and so on." It ill-behoves people who engaged in that sort of fallacy, he asserted, to set themselves up as competent critics and point out short-comings in the NRA. Instead, he urged, it should be given a fair trial as a human experiment and to that end there should be united support.

"A Mechanism"

Frank Fortin, another speaker, described the NRA as merely a mechanism for carrying out an idea, backed by the will of the people. He declared that if NRA fails, we may look for trouble that "we will have to answer to the unemployed."

Kenneth R. Loomis, Farmington NRA chairman, reported that final returns showed failure to obtain only 15 signatures at only five homes in Farmington. Only two of these were flat refusals, he said.

Mr. Loomis presided, and presented Mayor Warner, who introduced the speakers. Farmington Community Band furnished music. The meeting was moved from the Town Hall to the Community Hall due to conflict in dates with the past masters' night of Farmington Masonic Lodge.
