ten, telephone installer at New Haven, Conn, saved the life of a woman who had been seriously injured when an oil stove exploided in her home recently. Planten learned his first aid through the course open to all telephone employees. He was on his way to a job in West Haven when he heard an explesion. Turning, he saw thick smoke pouring from the windows of a house, and quickly elimbed the searest telephone pole, plugged in his linemark test set, and notified in the searest telephone pole, plugged in his linemark test set, and notified in the searest telephone pole, plugged in his linemark test set, and notified in a his linemark test set, and notified and an entire test set, and notified and an entire test set, and notified an ampliance, he located the woman and found that her right hand had been nearly severed by the force of the explosion. Again acting promptly, he makeshift tourniquet, winding it tightly around the woman's arm to stem the flow of blood. When the ambulance arrived the surgice, had been cloud that the blood flow when the simulance arrived the surgice, had been cound that the blood flow had been plant where it was said she owed ber life to the speed and skill of Planten's actions.
