Noted 'Tune Detective'

In Detroit Next Week

Sigmund Spaeth, noted entertainer and authority on music, will appear before the Detroit Town Hall Series at the Wilson Theatre Wednesday morning, January 10, at 11 o'clock.

"Millions of radio listeners know Dr. Spaeth as 'The Tune Detective' who looks up the family tree of every popular tune, traces its ancestry through a symphony, a drinking song, a church hymn, an opera or a Turkish lullaby, then broadcasts its history over the NBC network."

Rippling the keys of a piano, Dr. Spaeth, who is an accomplished musician, will initiate the Town Hall audience into the mysteries of "song sleuthing" and will show how Chopin and Schubert, Beethoven, Liszt, creep into the melodies of modern tune plunders.

A Doctor of Philosophy (Princeton), Sigmund Spaeth is the author of several well known books on music, among them "The Common Sense of Music" which is used in many schools and colleges. "Read 'Em and Weep," which started the vogue for old songs and is still the standard collection, and "They Still Sing of Love," a book of humorous essays on music.

Dr. Spaeth will be followed Wednesday morning, January 17, by Everett Dean Martin, psychologist, whose subject will be "What An Educated Person?" Other Town Hall speakers coming soon include Raymond Moley, Raymond Robins, Rockwell Kent, Carl Sandburg and Lovell Thomas.

Tickets for Dr. Spaeth's performance are on sale now at Grinnell's. Memberships at lowered prices for the balance of the season may be secured through the Town Hall office, suite 533, Detroit-Leland Hotel, Ra. 2300.

Buying Power of Hogs

Articles Farmers Buy

Cost in Terms of Hogs (100 pounds each)

Based on the fair exchange relationship with prices of things farmers buy, hogs during the past decade have had materially less purchasing power than they had in the pre-war period. In 1933, it took about eight hogs to buy what three hogs would buy in the 1914-16 period as indicated above. In all the years since 1920-21 (excepting in 1925-26 when there was a temporary reduction in hog supply) the purchasing power of hogs has been on a general downward trend. In 1933, the fair exchange value of hogs was $17.6 per hundredweight. The price of things farmers buy averaged slightly above their pre-war level. But the actual farm price of hogs in 1933 was only $3.47 per hundredweight, or $14.26 below fair exchange value.

Things farmers buy become double their pre-war level, then the fair exchange value will be double the pre-war price of hogs. The corn-hog production adjustment program under the Agricultural Adjustment Act seeks to raise hog prices to the current fair exchange value. This may be done by bringing production into better balance with the most profitable demand through a reduction in 1934 of 25 percent in hog production and 20 percent in corn acreage.

Cereal Every Morning

"Goodness, I wish I never had to eat any more oatmeal as long as I live!"

ly exclaimed a young hopeful at the breakfast table, receiving in return the severe admonition that oatmeal was good for him—made big strong men, and that he could eat his or receive something he would care even less for!

Yet the youngster really was not so much to blame as the mother. Variety is the spice of a child's life as well as of a grown person's, and to face the same uneventful bowl of cereal every morning is to become as bored as a young person possibly can. It is the house-maker's job to avoid boredom and foster eager interest in the members of her family, and the more thought she gives to producing varied and palatable dishes, the more popular her meals will be.

There is no need, as a matter of fact, to serve the same cereal every morning. In fact, one may have a different cereal every day in the week and differently prepared each time. Oatmeal may be followed by cornflakes, cream of wheat, puffed grains, wheatena, bran, porridge, shredded wheat. The cereal itself should hold a large variety of breakfast foods, and each be drawn upon in turn or as the child calls for it.

Combining cereals and fruits, or cereals and eggs, also affords endless variety. Dates, fresh apples cut in small pieces, figs, bits of sliced pineapple, bananas, canned pears, peaches and cherries, all blend appetizingly with cereals and a pouring of half milk, half cream. Sometimes a sort of tutti-frutti combination makes an appeal to a young child.

A poached egg, a semi-hard boiled egg cut in slices, or a tiny omelette laid on top of the cereal will often please a school boy or girl. In fact, anything different always commands attention, comment, experimentation, and a certain amount of extra interest. A little brown sugar, instead of white, may mark the variety one morning. The next morning a spoonful of clear bright red jelly may top the dish. Very often a child's capricious appetite can be tempted by the mere appearance of a familiar and necessary dish. And the same cereal two mornings in succession—never!

Wire Through Ice Cake

The melting of ice by means of pressure is a well-known laboratory experiment. It is true that if a fine wire carrying a weight be passed over a block of ice, the ice just below the wire is melted by the pressure and the water thus formed passing above the wire freezes again on being released. Thus, in a short time the wire cuts its way through the ice, leaving the block as solid as before.

A PROFIT IS NOT WITHOUT HONOR

(Reprint from the Saturday Evening Post, Nov. 11, 1933)

"Profit" comes from the Latin word for "progress."

In no other country has the profit principle created so much progress—so much material prosperity—as in the United States of America.

Yet here and there are men who seem to think that profit is wrong in principle—that all service and all production should be offered without profit. But most farm products and most manufactured goods in recent years have been offered not only at cost, but at less than cost. There has been little profit, and less progress. Who has benefited?

In 1932, like most other business, the motor car industry operated at a net loss. Individual makes of cars, in many cases, were sold at hundreds of dollars less than cost of production per car.

If the principle of "selling without profit" is sound economics, motor car manufacturers should have been flooded with orders. But they were not. Wonderful bargains were offered far below cost. Yet few people bought. Absent profits meant absent wages and salaries—absent jobs—absent purchasers.

Profits are the key to permanent business recovery. Governmental leaders recognize this fact. Labor leaders acknowledge it.

So, when you are urged to buy goods or services "at cost" without agent's commission, "without profit," are you really being asked to act in your own best interest?

Surely in your own daily life you have found that "A Profit Is Not Without Honor."

You find, too that your own home town business-men are most reliable and can serve you best. When tempted to buy out-of-town, by such bait as the phrases mentioned above, reflect seriously before you buy. Remember that when you patronize a home business, home industry and home professional men, at fair prices, and enable them to make a profit, then they can pay YOU a profit and their employees can pay YOU a profit and EVERYONE benefits.

When you are led astray by a false mirage of a supposed "saving," you deprive yourself as much as you do your home town fellow-citizen.

Think it over and you will keep your dollars at home.
