Treasurer Battle Decided

Mrs. Loretta Cox, Farmington Township treasurer, repeated her victory of a year ago, at the Township election Monday, defeating Theodore Kohlman.

Nine girl friends of Virginia Fisher surprised her on her birthday Thursday afternoon. March 29. She received many nice gifts. Lunch was served at 5:30 after which they played games. Mr. and Mrs. Carmi Smith and son Randall of Flint and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Deveraux of Walled Lake were Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hunt. Mr. and Mrs. Beiser spent the Easter holidays with the former's parents at Owosso.

I WISH TO THANK the voters of Farmington Township for their support Monday. It is greatly appreciated and I will serve to the best of my ability. JOSEPH GRAHAM. 22-1-c

LIBRARIAN MAKES PLEA FOR BOOKS TO BE RETURNED

A great increase in the patrons of the Farmington Library brings about an appeal by the City Librarian for the return of books long past due. "To the patrons who have had books out for some time: Would it be asking too much of you to return them Saturday of this week? There are several missing among the more recent books which we would like very much, such as "Under the Northern Stars" by Raine, "The Fountain" by Charles Morgan and a number of others which should be returned. New readers are signing up each week so it will be necessary for us to help keep the books moving or we will have to cut down on the number of books to be taken out every Saturday. Anyone having books or magazines to dispose of, we would be glad to receive them. Thanks, to Mrs. Leach for "Dear Naney." M. Kennedy.

Former Walled Lake Resident Passes Away

Word has been received by relatives of the late Orla J. Richardson of Vicksburg of his death. Mr. Richardson resided at Walled Lake for twenty years and married a Commerce Township girl, namely Hattie M. Holmes. He was born on March 22, 1859 and lived at Walled Lake for 20 years, later moving to Vicksburg. He had been proprietor of a nursery to Kalamazoo and active in political life there for the past 40 years. He had been in poor health for the past year. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Mary Douglas and a grandson James Douglas both of Detroit.

WAY OF CUTTING MILK PRODUCTION TOLD BY COLLEGE

One way in which Michigan dairymen can qualify for the benefit payments to be paid to those who sign contracts to reduce the amount of dairy products is to change their feeding program from intensive use of concentrates to more liberal use of roughages, according to the dairy department at Michigan State College. "This means is also recommended by O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry, U. S. D. A. Mr. Reed was formerly head of Michigan State and is thoroughly familiar with the problems facing the dairy industry. Mr. Reed's statement on this way of decreasing butterfat production follows: "When we have good roughage to feed and cut out full grain ration in two, we get approximately 10 per cent less milk than on full grain feeding," says Mr. Reed. "When we depend on roughage alone, we get about 30 per cent less milk than we get on full grain feeding. "This drop in production does not involve a corresponding drop in profits. Dairy farmers who plan to feed less grain and grow more roughage will benefit themselves and also agriculture as a whole. "Less intensive feeding of dairy cattle involves an increase in pasture and roughage acreage at the expense of cultivated crops, a shift already taking place in many regions. It helps to solve the grain surplus problem and to reduce the output of livestock products. "The dairy farmer's gross income may be less if he has his cows on roughage and pasture; but his costs of production will be less also. It is net income rather than gross income that counts. "In all regions where grasses or legumes grow well there are opportunities to shift advantageously from grains to grass and other roughage. In some regions, legumes do not thrive well. Recent scientific findings indicate, however, that other grasses cut in an immature state contain as much protein as do legumes cut at the ordinary stage. The shift to grass and roughage is practicable to some extent almost everywhere. "Erosion losses are terrific on many lands in cultivated crops. These same lands in pastures and legumes would be protected. Cultivated crops are hard on soil fertility. Pastures and legumes are a partial answer to this problem. "It is generally assumed that many cows would have to be butchered to accomplish the proposed reduction, but the fact is that a shift to roughage and grass might make even more cows necessary because of a smaller yield per cow."

Other methods recommended by the Dairy Bureau for feeding the requirements of the proposed dairy adjustment program are: (1) Raising fewer heifers and extending the period of whole milk feeding; (2) Delaying the breeding of heifers; (3) Using more dairy products on the farm; (4) Culling unsound and diseased cows; (5) Slaughtering low producers for home meat.

No Government Free Seeds Distribution

The State Department of Agriculture reports that it not infrequently receives requests for information as to where free garden seeds may be obtained. There is no federal or state agency distributing free garden seeds. In some instances the seeds may be obtained from the county. In the case of a farmer who needs money for seed, fertilizer, spraying materials, etc., application should be made to the Secretary-Treasurer of the Production Credit Association of the district in which he is located, the entire state being divided for this purpose into eighteen districts. Further information relative to this matter may be obtained from the State Department of Agriculture.

Beekeepers Urged To Reduce Disease Spread

Beekeepers of the State of Michigan are urged by Samuel L. Metzger, Commissioner of Agriculture, further to reduce the spread of American Foul Brood in the early spring, long before the weather is suitable for inspecting bee hives. The first warm day is the signal for the beekeeper to spend enough time in his apiary to detect any dead or greatly weakened colonies that might become victims of robbing bees. Even if no disease is discovered in them, the hives and combs of dead colonies should be taken into the honey house instead of being left in the apiary, where they might be "robbed out."

Ancient Relics in Graveyard Hunting and household relics unexcused in hardened clay and found in a prehistoric burial ground at Evora, Portugal, are estimated to date back 6,000 years.
