Farmington Is Fortunate
City Official Observes

Farmington people may well congratulate themselves on the abundance of water during the excessive summer drought, a City official observed this week. Other cities in this section have been obliged to restrict the use of it, especially for sprinkling purposes. There have been no restrictions in Farmington at any time. It was reported in a Detroit paper this week that the situation had become so acute in Birmingham that City officials have ruled that all who do not pay their bills within 30 days from the time due are deprived of water service.

Transmit Heartbeats 700 Miles by Telephone to Insurance Convention

The heartbeats of the young man in the dressing gown were transmitted 700 miles by telephone wire, from the home office of an insurance company in Washington, D. C., to a convention of insurance agents in St. Louis, Mo., so that they might listen in on a typical physical examination.

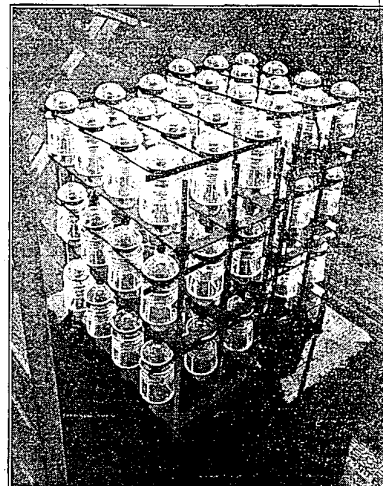

Even the gentle beating of a young man's heart in springtime now goes speeding over 700 miles of a telephone circuit and lands in a room where 150 people are listening. That is exactly what happened the other day during a recent insurance convention in St. Louis.

The young man was in Washington, D. C. The occasion was a regional convention in St. Louis of 150 field representatives of the Aetna Mutual Life Insurance Company, to whom the home office, in Washington, wanted to demonstrate a bit of home office "atmosphere."

As many as six persons, located in different parts of the room, took part in the demonstration at Washington. A high quality electro-dynamic microphone replaced the transmitter at the Washington end of the circuit and a hand set was used in place of the receiver. A loud speaker, with an associated telephone, was used at the St. Louis end of the circuit.

One of the scenes transmitted was the examination of an applicant for life insurance. The examining doctor in Washington heard the beats of a perfect heart, and so did 150 people at St. Louis. The heart of the most applicant was not so good, having a plainly audible heart murmur, due to impaired valvular action. So perfect was the transmission that the listeners at St. Louis could tell this for themselves, without being told. The officials in Washington felt that it would not be possible to take the entire medical and under-writing staff to St. Louis, except by telephone. The transmission of heart beats proved entirely satisfactory.

It Isn't the Heat, It's Humidity That Bothers Glass Insulators Too

Telephone wires are supported by glass insulators mounted on the crossarms of telephone poles. When the weather is humid, a film of moisture forms on the surface of the insulators; the higher the humidity, the thicker the film—and the more electric current leaks away. Important factors governing the amount of leakage are the chemical nature of the glass, its age and shape, and the amount and kind of dirt on its surface. This photograph shows a rack of glass insulators being exposed to the weather on the roof of the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York, where tests are being carried on to determine the most efficient type of insulator.

Joe Brown; Warner Baxter
Are In Northville Films

A cast, said to be exceptionally talented has been announced in support of Joe E. Brown, the prince of comedians, who comes to the Penniman Allen Theatre, Northville, Saturday, in the first National picture "A Very Honorable Guy."

Alice White, the diminutive blonde, who was a reigning star two years ago, plays the leading feminine role. Miss White recently returned to screen work and has played the leading feminine roles in three pictures, "Employees' Entrance," "Picture Snatcher," and "The Heir Chaser."

Three lovely women desire the thrill of Warner Baxter's embrace—the ecstasy of his kiss—in "Such Women Are Dangerous," the comedy-drama which comes to the same theatre Wednesday, August 8. Baxter portrays the role of a handsome bachelor-novelist. One of the women is Rosemary Ames, the charming girl who crashed into pictures in "I Believed In You."
