Catholic School Near Completion, Ready In October

Three Class Rooms And Auditorium Provided In School Near Orchard Lake Road

Our Lady of Sorrows school building, now under construction on Grand River Road near Orchard Lake Road, will be completed and ready for occupancy about October 15, Rev. John J. Larkin, pastor, said this week. The exterior will be rushed as rapidly as possible to finish the inside, he said.

The building is situated on a 10-acre plot purchased by the parish from the D. U. R. last May. It is expected that when finished it will accommodate 180 students.

Three Class Rooms Provided

There are to be three large rooms on the ground floor, each 32 feet by 24 feet, regulation size school rooms. It is planned to add more rooms in the future when the need develops. There is no particular architectural design to the building, the foundation being brick and the remainder of frame construction.

The entire basement will be made into an auditorium with a fully equipped stage and other appointments to adequately provide for the needs of the parish.

Will Be Taught By Nuns

Students at the school will be taught by Catholic nuns, Rev. Larkin acting as superintendent. There will be instruction given in eight grades, Rev. Larkin stated. In addition to the added facilities offered by the auditorium there will be adequate kitchen and dining facilities in the completed school.

The nearest Catholic school to Farmington is St. Mary's at Redford.

"WAR" CONTINUES IN SOUTHFIELD; BEGAN IN JULY

The war still rages! Apparently entering the second phase, a campaign of more normal proportions is being continued against night-time parking by the roadside in Southfield Township.

A renewal of the campaign, started in July, has already caused two motorists to be fined and added to the eight who fell during the July assault, runs the total of those who have been brought before Justice John J. Schulte to approximately 225.

The defendants have all been charged with trespassing. Constable Robert Wagner signing the complaints.

The scene of the arrests in most instances is the Lewis Hall farm on Eleven Mile Road, between Telegraph and Berg roads. According to one who has driven by the spot, it is "the nicest place." Well known to motorists, the highway, it is apparently ideal for one seeking seclusion—that is, ideal but for Constable Wagner.

Its qualities of beauty and almost complete isolation from the world seem to have been well publicized, judging from the number of motorists it has attracted. But curiously enough, all who were removed from this primeval setting by the strong arm of the law during the first drive were from Detroit. But now Oakland County's searchers for nature's beauty spots are locating the place and Detroiters are spurning it. If Constable Wagner's campaign is to continue, it would seem, as one individual pointed out the other day, altogether wise for all to continue overlooking it, Oakland and Wayne nature lovers alike.

Colliding Automobiles Interrupt G. O. P. Rally

A resounding crash, caused by two automobiles colliding, rudely interrupted various and sundry conversations that were in progress between candidates for Oakland County offices on the lawn of Farmington Methodist church, just prior to the Republican Rally Wednesday night.

An automobile, driven by Mrs. G. V. Fitzgerald, 642 Glen Court, Detroit, struck a car parked in front of the church owned by Earl L. Clark, of Pontiac, a candidate for the nomination for drain commissioner.

Farmington Girl Missing, Is Found

Janet Bowen White Found Serving As Waitress

A former Farmington girl, prominent in Detroit society, after having been the object of search by police throughout the nation and relatives and friends in Michigan, following her mysterious disappearance from the University of Michigan campus last Friday, has been found.

She was serving as a waitress in a roadside lunchroom near Bronson, Mich., on the Detroit-Chicago highway. She left Ann Arbor "not because the examinations were so difficult, but because I felt so inadequate to meet them," she said.

Miss Janet Bowen White, 21-year-old daughter of the late Kirby B. White, former vice-president of the Perry-Norse Seed Co., and Mrs. White, of 25735 Farmington Road, Farmington, was located Tuesday night when she telephoned her uncle, F. J. Nash, 24915 Farmington Road, Farmington, after being alarmed by accounts of her disappearance which she read in a newspaper.

Scores Triumph
When interviewed Tuesday, Miss White declined to discuss her plans, but declared she had cooked a triumph in cooking hamburger sandwiches.

"I've learned a lot about hamburgers since I came here," she said.

Besides I want to earn my own way," she asserted. "And I wanted to make up for the trouble I've caused my parents." She stated that she had started from Ann Arbor to walk the highways to Chicago. She said that she had been worried over her own inclination to procrastinate and that in the week before her disappearance she had suffered from headaches. She had obtained a medical examination on Thursday, which she missed last Thursday, she said.

Has 85 Cents In Purse
She asserted that she did not turn back her purse.

Several persons offered her rides and I accepted three of them. I had 85 cents, a lipstick and two aspirin tablets in my purse."

At the lunchroom she was wearing a pink smock over a green and white striped dress.

Miss White, with her parents and sister, Hester, came to Farmington to live about six years ago. Although Janet did not attend Farmington schools, Hester did and went as far as the tenth grade before transferring to Highland Park high school in 1932.

There will be no band concert or dance Friday of this week due to the appearance of the band at the Northville Fair on that day.

Lake Residents Seriously Hurt

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Welfare Seriously Injured In Collision

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Welfare, prominent Walled Lake residents, are in a critical condition in an Ann Arbor hospital as a result of injuries suffered Sunday night in a triple automobile collision on the Plymouth-Ann Arbor road. The condition of Mr. Welfare is regarded as especially acute.

Mr. Welfare, a member of the Walled Lake board of education, has a fractured skull while Mrs. Welfare, whose injuries are considered less serious, has a double fracture of the jaw and a fractured hip.

Mr. and Mrs. Welfare were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Christensen, of Northville. The extent of their injuries were not reported.

The accident is believed to have been caused by a blow out of a tire on an automobile approaching the Welfare car, causing it to hit another automobile and carom into the path of the Welfares. All three automobiles were wrecked.

Walled Lake Man Dies

John W. Smith, 72, 3950 West Maple Road, Walled Lake, died instantly Tuesday night when struck by an automobile while he was crossing Orchard Lake Road near Maple Road.

Coroner G. Dewey Kimball, of Birmingham, who was called to the scene of the accident, was told that Smith was crossing the pavement headed south when he apparently failed to notice the automobile approaching on his left, driven by Fred Underwood, 21, 135 Edison Street, Pontiac.

Underwood and his companion, Miss Sylvia Lessin, of Eloise hospital, were taken to Pontiac by Deputy Russell Sheasley and questioned by Assistant Prosecutor Patrick S. Lynch. Lynch said he believed Underwood was unable to avoid the accident and released him and Miss Lessin.

Crashes At Walled Lake

Clarence Brangard, of South Lyon, was seriously injured Tuesday morning when his automobile left the road and crashed into a tree. The accident occurred a mile east of Walled Lake. It is thought by officers that he fell asleep at the wheel.

Brangard was found several hours after the crash, still in the car, by Albert Berch, 30455 Utica Road, who summoned Deputy Elmer C. Brangard. Brangard was given first aid in the office of a Walled Lake physician and removed by ambulance to Pontiac General Hospital. It was reported from there that he is suffering from a fractured jaw, possible skull fracture and lacerations and bruises.

Thieves Enter 3 Homes; Attempt Made At Fourth

Reach Over Sleeping Occupant To Take Valuable Wrist Watch; Some Goods Recovered

A "crime wave" of no small proportions swept over Farmington Friday night and as a result dwellers in three homes are without valuable belongings and those in a fourth are thanking themselves that they happened to arrive home in time to frighten the thieves away.

The homes visited by the midnight marauders were those of D. L. Dickerson, 33620 Grand River; Louis F. Schroeder, 33636 Grand River; Eugene Brunk, 23309 Farmington Road; and Harrison Johnson, 23313 Farmington Road.

The Dickerson home was entered through a basement window and $15 in cash taken. The thieves reached over sleeping occupants of the Schroeder home to take a wrist watch after having gained entrance through a kitchen window, having first removed a screen. A skeleton key was used at the Brunk home to open a rear door. Three suits of clothes, an overcoat top coat and Hudson Seal coat were taken, the suits and fur coat being found Saturday morning in a woods south of the house. The coat was valued at $400.

Frightened Away

Nothing was taken from the Johnson home, the thieves being frightened away before gaining entrance.

Joseph DeVriendt, deputy sheriff, said that Deputy George White, finger print expert of the sheriff's office, secured several good finger prints which may lead to the identification of the culprits. Aside from that there are no clues, DeVriendt said, although from the manner in which the homes were entered and accompanying circumstances, there is little doubt in the officers' minds that it was done by experienced hands.

"Jobs" Well-Planned

Belief was expressed by DeVriendt that "the jobs were well planned," and that the guilty parties had known his whereabouts prior to and during the time of the robberies. He said that in response to a report from the Guer residence on Oxford Avenue, that attempts had been made to break in there, he spent two hours Friday night patrolling that property and the neighborhood. During this time it is believed at least two other homes were entered. Brunk also reported to DeVriendt Saturday that he had seen a man come out of the woods south of his home one night last week and approach the house, but was frightened away and chased for about a block north on Farmington Road by a dog.

More than a month ago two homes were entered in Clarenceville under similar circumstances, which leads authorities to believe that the same band may be responsible for both series of break-ins.

AUTHORITIES SEEK ADDRESS OF MAN, 60, KILLED NEAR NOVI

The address of George Jub, 60 years old, who was killed Saturday night while walking on Grand River Road two and one-half miles west of Novi, is still being sought by Coroner G. Dewey Kimball. It is known that the dead man has four children but officials have been unable to notify them. The body has been held at the Heene Funeral Home.

Jub was struck by an automobile driven by George I. Coulter, 192 Parent Street, Highland Park. The man apparently was killed instantly when Coulter saw him too late to avoid striking him.

Jub was a tile layer and until recently lived with the J. L. Monroe family near Novi. He moved to another home, the address of which authorities have been unable to learn. His suit case is believed there, containing names and addresses of his children, all of whom are believed to live in Detroit. Jub was of Austrian descent.
