Domestic System of England

The domestic system of England is the name applied to the system of household industry which preceded the factory system. There was little factory work previous to the early eighteenth century. Industrial projects, particularly textiles, were largely manufactured in the home under the personal supervision either of the merchant or his deputies. Due to this, hours were variable and wages were unregulated. This resulted in a system known as sweating.

Tallest People

According to the anthropometric observations of several scientists, the highest recorded stature of a race is 71.02 inches for males of the Sara tribe of Upper Nile region in north Africa. The females of this race, says the Washington Star, measure 64.2 inches in height. The geographical distribution of these human beings who are the tallest of their kind is capricious. They preponderate in areas so widely separated as Scotland, Montenegro, Rajputana, Sumatra, the Marquesas Islands and Patagonia, in addition to several African groups, including the one mentioned.

Many Springs in Ozarks

The Ozark region of Missouri contains more than 10,000 springs.
